"We Let 'Em Howl."
Sitting on the Safety Valve.
Food Will Be Cheaper.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1919).

Through the bright Sabbath sunshine of day before yesterday, a train, escorted by government guards heavily armed, came traveling to the Atlantic from the Far West, carrying a load of men described as "I. W. W. trouble-makers, bearded labor fanatics and red flag supporters, huddled in crowded berths."

These men, selected by government detectives, picked up quietly and swiftly, will be shipped from the United States to the countries from which they came by this government, which wants peace for reconstruction.

It was an interesting trainload, a new, interesting sight, an incident in United States history.

One guard in charge of these deported agitators said something that may interest Senators who are discussing free speech, the Espionage act and the desirability of regulating by law what men say and write.

"We let 'em howl and wave the red flag as much as they wanted to after we left Seattle, and when they found that they could do it without causing anybody trouble they quit, and have been quiet ever since."

Possibly the policy that worked well with the agitators locked up in the Pullman car might work fairly well throughout the country.

Senators who recently defeated Mr. Borah's attempt to restore to life the constitutional guaranty of free speech said they couldn't allow free speech or free writing because "they must squelch Bolshevism." Has it occurred to Senators that in Russia, where Bolshevism was born, free speech and free writing were most effectively squelched by a line of Czars and their secret police? Sitting on the safety valve didn't work in Russia. Why should it work in the United States?

In England, on the other hand, where any man can say anything and print anything, wave any flag, red, green or purple, they have managed to maintain order under difficult conditions. The English believe, so did the guard on the I. W. W. deportation train, that if you "let 'em howl and wave the red flag as much as they want to," they will be content. Digestiafaction is a force very much like steam. Let it escape in dribbets and it does little harm. Bottle it up and you may have trouble.

While the foreign born agitators were traveling on Sunday, taking their last look at the home of the free and the land of the brave, American born ladies were having a circus party in Washington. They had a little doll two feet long which they called Woodrow Wilson, and burned solemnly in front of the White House because, as they said, Woodrow Wilson didn't "force the Senate to pass the suffrage amendment."

It is preposterous that this nation, which is doing more talking than all the others put together about democracy and freedom, should now be the only Anglo-Saxon government in the world to keep women in political slaves. England, Russia, Hungary, Austria, Germany treat all women as human beings, with the right to share in making laws that govern them. This country does not. Nevertheless, the ladies are foolish and unjust when they burn the President in effigy. For he has done more for suffrage than any other man in the United States.

You read that the district and military police were assisted by Boy Scouts. It would do well to let Boy Scouts keep out of the enterprises in which women are arrested.

In America, where women are classed with non-voting idiots, Indians and children, little boys learn contempt for women easily enough. To permit them as children to assist in arresting the mothers of other boys, and thus deve.op early their contempt for women is rank stupidity and brutalities them ennecessarily.

Food prices are coming down because they must. You would hardly suspect, as you shop for something to eat, that there is more food in the United States now than in the months of the United States can use. And European countries are doing their buying largely in South America, Australia and other places, where prices are lower.

Here are facts to cheer up high cost of living victims:

Pork will be cheaper. There are in the United States now sixteen million of a hundred thousand more swine than in 1914, when the war began, and this in spite of the tremendous shipments to Europe. At an average weight of two hundred pounds per hog, dressed, that would be thirty-two pounds more pork for every man, woman and child in the United States.

Dairy cattle have increased nearly three million during the war and cattle for beef more than eight and a half millions. The prices of milk, butter and beef must come down, in spite of the most ingenious methods for holding prices up.

JAPAN TREATIES WAR

Paris, Feb. 11.—A virtual threat of war on China was made today by representatives of the Japanese government, when they announced that Japan would restrain China at all hazards from making public secret treaties between the two nations.

The Japanese representatives also announced that Japan intends to retain the Marshall and Caroline Islands, formerly German colonies.

DISCHARGE NO MORE SOLDIERS

Troops to Be Held in Army Some Time Longer, Under Change in Plans

New York, Feb. 11.—Colonel J. R. McAndrews of the Army General Staff said at a conference here of the committee on demobilization and unemployment of the State Reconstruction Commission that there would be no further discharges for several months of soldiers in United States service.

This announcement may be the result of the statement by Premier Clemenceau of France that the present proceedings at Versailles may be only a lull in the world situation. The Premier's statement has been regarded in many quarters as a warning against the possibility of serious developments.

Colonel McAndrews is on the Army General Staff. He told the committee that the number of soldiers serving in the United States had been cut down to the lowest possible number necessary to maintaining the military establishment. He announced that discharges, at least for the next few months, would be granted only to men returning from overseas.

Information was given that during February not more than 160,000 overseas troops would be returned by the demobilized, and that the March demobilization return would not run more than 200,000. The monthly maximum is placed at 300,000, but few, if any of the months, are due to attain that demobilization figure.

General Edwards received orders today not to allow any more men to be discharged from the coast defenses of Boston. These defenses have been demobilized 50 per cent and though there are urgent requests to discharge more of this unit, notice was served today that no more discharges would be allowed for the time being.

Bitter French Attack on Anglo-American 'Idealism'

This was the declaration made in the Echo de Paris today by M. Pertinax, the foremost campaigner against certain governments represented at the peace conference and the most violent commentator in the morning press. He adds:

"Great Britain and America shall pay for their errors made possible through their idealism, half of which is electoral flattery and dogmatism, and the other half egotistical commercialism."

DATE OF WILSON SAILING STILL IN DOUBT

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 11.—President Wilson is anxious to avoid any demonstration in honor of his homecoming and has let this be known in cablegrams to Secretary Tumulty, it was learned at the White House executive offices today. It was stated that the President, after landing from the George Washington at Hoboken, will proceed to Washington as quickly as possible.

Here he will march at the head of a parade of District of Columbia Yanks, but will not review the parade.

The President has not given any hint of any definite date of his sailing from France. It was stated. It all depends on developments at the peace conference. It was indicated that the President's departure may finally be set for Friday or Saturday, but that if developments are such as to require his presence in France he will delay starting the return trip as long as possible, arriving in this country, if necessary, only for the closing day or two of Congress.

GERMAN PRESIDENT TO GET MILLION MARKS

Copenhagen, Feb. 11.—The President of the German empire, who is expected to be elected by the National Assembly at Weimar, on Thursday, will receive a salary of 1,000,000 marks (Approximately $240,000) annually and will live in the royal castle at Bellevue, according to a dispatch from Weimar today.

GERMANS PROTEST HOLDING OF PRISONERS

Berlin, Feb. 11.—Thousands of persons attended two mass meetings here on Sunday afternoon to protest against the entente's action in withholding German war prisoners. Thousands of circulars signed by the People's League, charged the entente with having broken their promise to the German armistice delegates to repatriate the German prisoners in allied countries.

DRINKS FLORIDA WATER TO BEAT "DRY" LAW

A man was brought into Station 11 charged with being intoxicated. He denied it. When asked what he had drunk, he replied "Florida water." He explained that as long as the nation was preparing to become bone dry, he was preparing to get accustomed to substitutes. He was released.

RIOT AS REDS DISCOVER 'SPY'

New York, Feb. 11.—A riot broke out today among the fifty-eight I. W. W. and Bolshevik adherents after they had been taken on board the immigration barge William C. Moore for transportation to Ellis Island, whence they will be deported from the United States for illegal strike activities in the West.

Rioting was precipitated when the malcontents attempted to kill one of their number, whom they accused of being a government spy. Fists and clubs were used and some of the men were badly beaten up. Of the number on board the barge fifty-seven were men. The woman, who was held aloof from the others, did not take part.

The trouble-makers arrived in Hoboken at 7:20 for deportation from this port as alien agitators. Some of them were accused of being involved in the strike troubles at Seattle. They were under heavy guard upon the train and on the trip to Ellis Island. This guard proved insufficient when the fighting broke out, however, and a special force of men under Chief Beatty, of the Lackawanna railroad police force, was rushed to the scene. They quickly clubbed the Bolsheviks into submission. The woman in the party was said to be a disciple of Bolshevism from Helsingfors, Finland.

STOPS RUNAWAY THAT IMPERILLED CHILDREN

Patrolman Arthur Cooper, an automobile policeman of, Station 11, stopped a runaway horse today on Columbia road, Dorchester. Many children were on their way to school at that hour and Cooper saw the great danger. Seizing the bridle, he brought the horse to a halt after being dragged twenty feet. He was injured. Benjamin Garr of No. 189 Quincy street, who was in the buggy when the horse ran, was thrown to the ground, but was not hurt.

She put up 200 cans and many glasses of jelly during the past season, and realized a net profit of $245.57 on her products.

STRIKERS ACCUSE POLICE

Lawrence Leaders Say Arrest of Kaplan Was Intended to Stampede Mill Hands

By JOHN F. GAVIN.

Lawrence, Feb. 11.—Strike leaders today, including among them Sam Bramhall, Ime Kaplan and Attorney Thomas G. Connolly, charged that the Lawrence police arrested Kaplan yesterday in an effort to stampede the meeting of the strikers and create disorders.

They charged that the officers entered the meeting room with revolvers in their outside pockets ready for any eventuality.

Kaplan was defiant today. He declared that despite the efforts of the police he would not be driven from the city, but on the contrary would remain here and would continue to lead the strike. His reception at the hands of the strike committee was an ovation.

"I am here to stay," said Kaplan at the close of the meeting, "and I do not expect to be arrested. My arrest was a stupid piece of work on the part of the local police, but I shall take no legal action against them. They arrested me for the purpose of getting me out of town. They treated me brutally here, but in Boston my treatment was good. As a piece of advertising it was worth $10,000 to the strikers."

Kaplan has been named one of the members of a committee to wait on Public Safety Commissioner Carr in an effort to secure a permit for a parade on Thursday. Inasmuch as the same commissioner declined to issue such a permit last week, it is considered doubtful if he grants one now.

"The Lawrence police," said Bramhall, "come in to our meeting to arrest Kaplan for the purpose of creat-

Germany Still Has 12,000 Airplanes, 4,000 Big Guns

By International News Service.

Paris, Feb. 11.—Germany still has 12,000 airplanes and 4,000 field guns, it is declared by L. P. Lecleur, French representative of the peace conference committee on reparation, according to the Echo de Paris today. The question of seizure of these armaments is most important, M. Lecleur was quoted as saying.

General Tasker H. Bliss of the United States Peace Commission, and Norman Davis are expected to be the American representatives of a commission to draw up new armistice terms for Germany. The supreme war council considering this matter met again today.

ADMIRAL WOOD LEADS NAVAL PARADE

Boston has its first chance to see how the young sailors who have been manning the American naval boats and transports, carrying the army overseas and back, look after their hard work today, when 1,746 of the boys paraded from the Charlestown Navy Yard to uptown hotels for lunch. Afterwards they went to the theatre. Governor Calvin Coolidge and Mayor Andrew J. Peters reviewed the parade, the former from the State House and the latter from City Hall.

Many shipbuilders along the route of the procession had their places decorated for this, the first exclusively naval parade since the signing of the armistice. The marchers were men from the following ships: Delaware, Little, Sigourney, Tucker, Wadsworth, Kentucky, Isabel, Housatonic, Canandaigua, Chanticleer, Baltimore, Salem, Mt. Vernon, Paulding and Jenkins.

Rear-Admiral Wood led the procession, with the captains of the various ships on a staff. At the end of the parade the men divided into three sections, one going to the City Club, one to the Copley-Plaza, and one to the Brunswick for lunch. After lunch the sailors went to the Majestic Theatre to attend a special performance of McIntyre and Heath in "Hello, Alexander!" At the end of the play Governor Coolidge and Mayor Peters made short addresses to the men.

Those in the Mayor's special stand included Mrs. Peters, his mother, Mrs. Andrew J. Peters, Jr.; his son, Andrew J. Peters, Jr.; Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer and Miss Mary A. Hart.

At the Hotel Brunswick, where 550 of the men were entertained, Walter L. Collins, William P. Kenny of the Library Trustees and William C. S. Healy were in charge of the reception, and occupied the head table with Lieutenant-Commander C. L. Gest and Lieutenant-Commander Leland Jordan of the U. S. S. Delaware.

On the State House steps with Governor Coolidge as the line passed were Rear-Admiral Charles L. Burrill, Colonel Jesse Stevens, Adjutant-General, members of the Governor's military staff and Councilors Louis S. Sullivan and James J. Harris. Two naval bands were in line, from the Delaware and the Kentucky.

100 OF THE 55TH ARE WELCOMED TO BOSTON

An additional 100 overseas veterans arrived at the South Station from Fort Wright, New London, Ct., today and were met by the Mayor's Reception Committee. The men who came today were from Battery B and the Medical Corps of the 55th Regiment, Coast Artillery. They marched from the station through Summer and Winter streets to the Common. There they were greeted and signed the register for returning veterans.

BIG IMPROVEMENT PLANS OUTLINED

Better service and the complete rehabilitation of the Boston Elevated were promised the public on condition that the Commonwealth purchase the Cambridge subway at a cost of $8,000,000, by former Congressman Samuel L. Powers, Elevated Trustee, speaking today before the legislative Committee on Railroads in favor of a bill empowering the State to purchase the Cambridge subway from the Boston Elevated Railway Company.

Trustee Powers declared that the Cambridge Subway, if purchased now, would cost the State $8,000,000, whereas, if the deal were postponed until public ownership became inevitable, the price would be double that figure.

"The Boston Elevated is at a crisis in its history," he said. "If the State comes to the rescue now and assumes the ownership of the Cambridge subway, the resulting income will enable the Elevated to take care of all its problems for many years to come."

DEVELOPMENT PLANNED.

"By placing the road on a sound financial basis, it will enable the trustees to borrow readily and result in the immediate putting into effect of the five-year program of development which has already been planned," he said.

Trial of the proposed "zone system" in the metropolitan district, in the opinion of the Elevated trustees, will result to the benefit of both the patrons and the road, it was asserted, and such a system will be placed in operation some time in April.

From the sentiment expressed at the hearing it was believed that the purchase outright of the Cambridge subway would be favored by the committee, rather than the alternate measure providing that the onerous subway rentals be assumed by the municipalities served by the Elevated system.

"The rate of fare will go down when the cost of living goes down,

EGG MEN QUICK TO PUT UP PRICES

The Boston wholesale egg market took quick advantage today of a slight increase in yesterday's Chicago wholesale market.

The wholesale Chicago quotation on prime fresh Western eggs went up yesterday one and one-half cents per dozen. On the Boston Fruit & Produce Exchange today the wholesale quotation on prime fresh Westerns jumped up a half cent to 47½ cents a dozen. This was a recovery of half of yesterday's decline of one cent from Saturday's price.

CONSUMERS DISAPPOINTED.

Boston consumers and retailers looked for a sympathetic decline here in the wholesale prices yesterday, based upon Saturday's news from Chicago of a slump in wholesale egg prices there from 6 to 6½ cents per

ARMY OF 70,000 RUSSIANS TO FIGHT REDS

Stockholm, Feb. 11.—An army of 70,000 Russians has been formed in Finland to march on Petrograd and help throw the Bolsheviks, said a dispatch from Helsingfors today. The Bolsheviks are said to be evacuating Petrograd.

SPECIAL SESSION ON BURLESON RATES FIGHT

Chief Justice Rugg of the Supreme Court has arranged for a special sitting of the full court during the last week of the present month to hear arguments on the petition of the Public Service Commission to compel the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company to cancel the schedule of toll rates ordered by Postmaster-General Burleson, on the ground that such rates are unreasonable.

SAY AGREEMENT WAS VIOLATED AT FORE RIVER

Striking drillers and tappers from the Fore River yards in Quincy declare that the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company did not live up to the terms of the agreement with them in regard to wages. They declare statements of the company that they got $1.25 per hour on piece work are untrue, saying they get but 68 cents per hour. Since last Saturday they are supposed to get double pay for overtime, they claim.

26 MILLIONS ON STATE BOOKS 4 YEARS HAVE NEVER BEEN AUDITED

INCOME TAX RETURNS SHOW MARKED DISCREPANCIES

That most incredible sum, millions of dollars of the State books have not been audited by the state Auditor, was the startling fact brought out at a hearing before the Taxation Committee of the Legislature last night.

To correct this loose practice in the administration of State finances Rep. Frank H. Wood has introduced a bill which would make it the duty of the State Auditor to audit the books of the Commonwealth annually. At present the law is silent on the matter, but leaves the impression that the Auditor may audit the accounts at his discretion.

Mr. Wood's anti-delay bill was before the Taxation committee for an amendment that would prohibit the State auditor to go over the books, but the request was not granted. At that time it was stated the books of the assistant deputies showed the astounding figure of $26,000,000 per year. This meant half of the tax collectors' accounts failed to coincide with the State books. In spite of this showing nothing was done and the accounts allowed to run on for another year.

The bill this year seeks to remedy things.

GEN. EDWARDS (PIGEON) A MESSENGER TO MAINE

Carrier pigeon named "General Edwards" took flight with three other birds from the attention pen at Army headquarters on Chauncy street today for Fort Williams, Portland, Me. Miss Clara Hill, one of the pigeon corps force in the Northeastern regiments, releases the birds, and reached its destination in a little over two hours. The message which "General Edwards" carried informed the people of the Pine Tree State that the real General Edwards was coming Feb. 28 and would remain in Maine three days, saving a few other larger cities and concluding his trip at Portland.

TODAY IN CONGRESS

Washington, Feb. 11.—President Wilson's indorsement of a budget system for appropriations by Congress is revealed in this brief message he cabled to Representative Swagar Sherley of Kentucky, chairman of the Appropriations committee:

"Here you are again endeavoring to work out a budget plan. I hope that you will succeed. Sincerely yours. WOODROW WILSON."

Washington, Feb. 11.—The National Security League did a great injustice to members of the House of Representatives and to the public, and I regret that the attack was ever made," said Judge Alton B. Parker, honorary vice-president of the league today, testifying before the House investigating committee on the league's congressional chart to gauge the "loyalty" of members of the House.

POWERS URGES STATE BUY SUBWAY

Mr. Powers said that it was the decision of the trustees to operate in every way with the public for better service. The taking over of the subway, he believed, by the city, Elevated between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000, would result in a saving of $1,000,000 which he said, could be used to good effect.

"We have already ordered new cars, costing $7,000,000," he said. "These will soon commence to arrive. But we desire more and the conditions require more. We desire better equipment. Having this equipment we believe we can operate the road even more economically than now. We are selling the service we would like to give."

OPPOSES ZONE SYSTEM.

Mr. Powers said he did not favor the introduction of a zone system.

"Property and rents will advance in the inner zone. In the outer zone the merchants of course will benefit greatly as the people will not come into the city to trade, paying an extra fare. They will patronize their local dealers, theatres, etc. My belief is that in the end, the flat rate will prevail."

H. Ware Barnum, trustee, said the approach of war was all that prevented, in his belief, the purchase of the Cambridge subway by the Commonwealth in 1917.

METAL TOKEN FEB. 22.

Metal tokens will replace paper tickets, which have proved unsatisfactory, February 22, the trustees state. With the introduction of the tokens all fares will be collected at prepayment areas, by which system it is expected fraud will be reduced to a minimum.

Service cannot be made satisfactory until new equipment is secured, the trustees' report states. Improvements have been made in the service, however, daily trips being increased by 817, and the daily car mileage by 8,300 miles. "The washing, cleaning and painting of cars has received attention not heretofore given," it is stated.

The cost of service for six months under public operation was $14,276,422.78. "It is estimated that for twelve months to June 30, 1919, the cost of service will be approximately $28,000,000. The cost of service per passenger was 8.72c cents."

Operating expenses, including maintenance, power and wages, increased $3,629,000 in six months, wages alone increasing $1,283,000. "The increase in cost of power is due to increase in wages and increase in consumption and cost of coal. Due to inferior grade of coal received, 9,000 tons more coal, at an average cost of $7.47⅞ per ton, were used," it was asserted.

ONE-MAN CARS FAVORED.

The statement says the trustees having experimented with a one-man car, believe in the policy of introducing cars of this type in considerable numbers on lines that seem suited for their use. Continuing, the trustees' report says:

"The service wanted by patrons and by trustees cannot be furnished unless more money is available for capital expenditures. The act of 1915 under which public control of the company was acquired contemplates the raising of revenue through fare sufficient to meet expenses of operation. This expectation should be realized unless economy can be looked upon as impossible.

"The trustees have decided that $2,000,000 should be charged to cost of service each year in order to renew property wearing out at the rate. Renewals which the use of this depreciation reserve will permit will benefit the service, but there are renewals which should be met at once and for which it is sought to obtain the money invested in the Cambridge subway.

"The company needs today in order to operate its present property, cars, power, track renewals, car sheds, and our house alterations, irrespective of any remodeling or change of present railways to provide for rapid transit trains and irrespective of extensions of the system."

It is proposed in the next five years to purchase 600 surface cars; improvements in power equipment is planned; a big new car-shop is planned. To afford service reasonably free from interruption caused by breaking of cars, or out of order repair, and to effect economies which can be reflected in lower fares, the following capital expenditures in the years 1919-1923, inclusive, are proposed:

Cars, $10,500,000; power, $5,000,000; track work, $2,000,000; car shops, $2,500,000; miscellaneous, $1,500,000; total, $21,500,000.

Fitzgerald, Man of Many Titles, Is 56 Today

Boston's most titled man is 56 years old today. He is ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald. He has probably had more titles applied to him than any other citizen of the Hub. He is known as "Honey Fitz." Among them are: Mayor, Congressman, Delegate, Colonel, "Little Colossal," "Little Gentleman," "Dean of Public Life," "Sweet Caroline," "Silver Tongue" and "Honey Fitz."

In his 56 years he has shone as an orator, a singer, a politician, a public-office holder, a newspaper man, head of a clothing store, and an authority on Boston.

KING PRAISES LEAGUE; OPENS PARLIAMENT

London, Feb. 11.—"I rejoice particularly that the powers assembled at the peace conference have agreed to accept the principle of a League of Nations, for it is by progress along lines read that I see the only hope of saving mankind from a recurrence of the horrors of war," said King George in an address today, opening Parliament.

U. S. FRIENDSHIP CEMENTED.

The King said it had given him great pleasure to receive President Wilson in England, adding:

"The enthusiastic welcome accorded the President is proof of the good will which, in all sections, my people feel towards the great republic of the West and is evidence of the increasing understanding between it and us. They will act together in the future."

Expressing his fears on the Irish situation King George said: "The position of Ireland causes me great anxiety, and I earnestly hope conditions will soon sufficiently improve to make it possible to provide a durable settlement of this difficult problem.

"It is your duty," continued the King, "while maintaining the rights of property and persons, to spare no effort in healing the causes of existing unrest, and I earnestly appeal to you to do all in your power to revive and foster a happier and more harmonious spirit in our industrial and national life."

MUST MITIGATE SUFFERING.

"The ravages and wastage of war have not yet been repaired. If we are to repair these losses and build a better Britain we must continue to manifest the same spirit. . . We must stop at no sacrifice of interest and prejudice to stamp out unmerited poverty and diminish unemployment, to mitigate its suffering, to provide decent homes, to improve the nation's health and to raise the standard of welfare throughout the community. But we shall not achieve this end by undue tenderness towards the acceptance of abuses, and it will not necessarily be retarded by violence or by obstruction.

"We shall succeed only by patience by Mr. Thore, which seeks to prevent and untiring resolution in carrying the ruthless killing dogs.

ARREST WOMEN STRIKERS AT LAWRENCE

ing trouble. They might just as well have arrested him at his home. They came here with revolvers in their pockets, carried in such a way that we might see them. When united together, but failed in the effort. They couldn't manipulate us through the strikers' arrests, by intimidation and picketing were before Judge Mahoney in police court and fined $5 each. Attorney Connolly defended them and engaged in an argument with the court over the case. "It is very evident," declared Connolly, "that the Lawrence police are under the fact that there is a peaceful picketing law on the statute books. These people were arrested because any disorders were practiced."

"I wouldn't attempt to define," said Judge Mahoney, "peaceful picketing. You think there is any such thing as a peaceful picket?"

ARRESTED AS LOITERERS.

Arrests made this morning were for loitering or intimidation. Those arrested were Martin Kosa and his wife, Mary Kirsk, Mary Bowley, Alec Cattick, Stephen Anonuk and Helen Kosa. Most of the people were all in the vicinity of the hotbed—the Arlington Mill.

Mounted and foot police forced the strikers to keep on the move. There were some disorders, but with just the right amount of dispatch and three men were arrested.

A riot outside Lexington Hall was one of the major disorders of the strike, and forty policemen, including strike cavalry, were compelled to become engaged in a stiff fight with the strike sympathizers.

THREAT FOR WORKERS.

The strike sympathizers showed threatening facts into the faces of the workmen and women, while the police insisted them off from one corner to another in an effort to break up the crowd.

OPPOSES STRINGENT LAWS AGAINST DOGS

Wendell P. Thore of Boston today appeared before the joint legislative Committee on Agriculture as an opponent of the proposed bill introduced by Rep. Cook which seeks the protection of sheep in this State through stringent laws governing the care and control of dogs. The hearing also took up the consideration of House No. 581, introduced by Rep. Infuzzo. There is only one difference between the two bills, the nature of the law. The Advocate was unaccompanied by any formal statement save that he hoped and believed the strikers would win. He said a formal statement would be made by him at the close of the strike.

Russo had been an advocate of publicity in conducting the general committee meetings, and has in other words been out of sympathy with his colleagues, it is understood.

SAVE MONEY ON SHOES FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

From Foochow, China, comes this letter from R. B. Gardner, Foochow College: "Neolin Soles have solved the shoe problem for me. Other soles wore out quickly on the rocky roads here, and I had no end of trouble with them," he writes.

Where other soles fail, Neolin Soles always stand the test of hard wear and rough usage. This fact points the way to economy. Buy Neolin-soled shoes for the whole family, and so save shoe money. And have Neolin Soles put on your old shoes, too.

These durable, flexible, and waterproof soles are scientifically made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels, guaranteed to outwear all other heels.

SECOND ARREST PREDICTED IN $171,000 THEFT AT BRIGHTON BANK

HANSON TO TELL ALL

Luther R. Hanson, who has admitted stealing $171,000 from the Market Trust Company of Brighton, today in an exclusive interview with the Boston American, the first he has given since his arrest, declared that any money he had had been lost in the stock market. His denial it had been squandered in wine, women and song.

While Hanson talked with the interviewer at the Charles Street Jail detectives representing District Attorney Pelletier were waiting for a second man to arrest. The identity of this man is known, as is his connection with the case. His arrest is now but a matter of minutes.

Hanson told the American some of the things which the public most desires to know. There are yet other facts which for the time being he is withholding. His promises, however, that before he is sentenced to prison he will reveal to the American readers his method of operations and clarify some of the situations which exist.

"A glaring mistake was made in the whole affair," said Hanson.

"The only man who might have helped any in the case was raked out of society and cast into a cell at the wrong time. The bank knew that something had happened. I assured them that were I given an opportunity there would be much benefit.

"I wasn't given the opportunity. On the contrary I was sent here to jail and the prosecutor today is worse than it might otherwise have been.

"I have no complaint to make of the treatment the officials have accorded me. The police, the district attorney and the sheriff have used me as well as though I were one of their companions rather than a man charged with the larceny of $171,000. Captain Armstrong, District-Attorney Pelletier and Sheriff Keliher have done all in their power for me. Not one word of complaint from me as regards them.

"Here at the jail conditions have been as good as they might be expected to be. Of course, one must appreciate that a shut-in is a shut-in. I am an outcast from society for the time being, and as much I can't find fault. Sunday was a most dreary day. I had no visitors and the hours seemed especially long.

"Today things have been different. I have had a number of callers, and they have served to relieve the monotony. Your call on behalf of Mrs. Hanson helped relieve the monotony of things. My wife has been a constant caller, and there have been one or two of my friends who have stood by me. But in the main the good treatment I have had has come from those within the jail here.

"I appreciate that my story would be a good object lesson for plenty of young men. In proper time I shall tell it, and I assure you that were I do tell you the story I will have told you a good one. If I were to talk at present or at this time it might have a disastrous effect for both the bank and myself.

"The public must wait for a short time longer before I tell them my story. It may be that a slight medium of delay now will result in the straightening out of this tangle. When the proper time comes I will tell the readers of the American the true story of the happenings at the Market Trust Company."

Meanwhile the authorities are continuing their investigations into the doings at the Market Trust Company. It has been definitely established that Hanson was not alone in his nefarious operations. Furthermore it can be stated positively that an arrest will be made before another day has passed.

The authorities are firmly convinced that they know just how this unostentatious young man was able to make off with $171,000 since August, 1916. Furthermore they know the exact mode of procedure he used in his defalcations. They know just how he transmitted the stolen funds from Boston to New York. Then they know the exact stocks in which Hanson and his associate dealt.

It seems almost certain that the amount to be salvaged from the wreckage is slight. It can be nowhere near the total which the bank has lost as a result of Hanson's activities. Most of the securities in which he dealt have been proven to be worthless. There are some, however, which can be converted into cash and thus used to offset some of the loss which the bank has suffered.

Investigators working on behalf of District Attorney Pelletier have uncovered a wealth of information. They have secured numerous cancelled checks which will be of benefit when the trial of one of those concerned is called.

One thing which particularly concerns those engaged in the investigation is the fact that Hanson was so well able to cover up his operations. They insist that had a proper audit of the books been made such peculations would have been impossible.

There was nothing about Hanson's mode of living which might tend to the belief that he was securing a vast sum of money from any source whatever. Both he and his young wife dressed plainly and lived in similar style.

"They who say," said Hanson, "that I spent any of the money on clothes or living do. I never engaged in any of those sort of parties. I appreciate that a man of a young man gets into a difficulty of this sort such stories are bound to crop up. With regards myself and my difficulties, however, they are entirely false.

"Any money I had went into the market. Just how it went I don't care to say at this time. Suffice it to say that there is a fine chance of the bank's realizing something out of the wreck. When that realization comes to pass, I shall be more frank with you. For the time being, however, it must continue the same."

RENEW BATTLE FOR CONTROL OF CHAMBER

Grain Men's Leaders Denounce "Harriman Policy" and Demand Huestis' Removal

A battle royal for control of the Boston Chamber of Commerce is predicted as a result of a circular sent today to all certificate-holding members by Albert K. Tapper and Ralph S. Bauer, representing the opposition to President Henry I. Harriman's alleged "rule or ruin policy, aided and abetted by the directors."

The removal of James H. Huestis, New England Director of Railroads and member of the New England Transportation Committee, is also demanded by Tapper in an open letter to Director-General of Railroads Walker D. Hines at Washington.

Today's circular to the certificate-holding members declares that many have been misled by one famed by Harriman, and are recalling their proxies empowering members of the "Harriman crowd" to acquire control of the chamber property.

The controversy is an outgrowth of the feud between the "grainmen" of the Chamber and the former members of the "Merchants' Association," which was swallowed up by the reorganized Chamber in 1909.

Today the "grain men" claim they are in danger of being voted out of their original rights, and are endeavoring to forestall.

A bill has been introduced in the Legislature by Senator Nichols, at the instigation of President Harriman, say the "grain men," which, if passed, would enlarge the powers of the non-property-owning members and virtually deliver to them the control of the institution.

The opposition, representing the grain men, has filed a bill in equity in the Superior Court to compel the President and directors to live up to an agreement entered into with the members, which agreement the legislative bill would tend to annul.

The "grain men," composing a majority of the original property owners of the chamber, are said to be back of Tapper as signer of today's circular sent to certificate-holders, which, after calling President Harriman and his colleagues to account for their "reckless use of figures in reference to the value of the holding certificates," and charging misrepresentation, expresses the belief that "the execution of the Harriman scheme means disintegration and disaster." It urges a "careful reading" of its charges, "and then, if the reader is so minded," it urges the certificate-holder, if he has not already done so, to "write Secretary McMillen of the chamber to return the proxies."

Early today the daughter of John J. allagher of Adams street, East Milton, awoke and found her room filled with dense smoke. She aroused her family, but the flames barred them from escape. So they climbed to the veranda roof, where they remained until hose company ladders released them. The damage was between $2,000 and $2,500.

Nat Goodwin's Estate Valued at $6,000 All Personal

New York, Feb. 11.—Nat C. Goodwin, the actor, who died at the Hotel Claridge, January 31, left an estate of only $6,000, all in personality, it was disclosed, when his parents, Nathaniel C. and Caroline Goodwin, aged eighty-five and eighty years, respectively, and whose home is in Roxbury, Mass., made application in the Surrogate's court for letters of administration.

Goodwin made large sums of money annually for many years, but he was a free spender and lender and lost much money in unfortunate business ventures of recent years.

"PRINCESS PAT" TO OMIT "OBEY" WHEN SHE WEDS

London, Feb. 11.—Princess Patricia, youngest daughter of the Duke of Connaught, will not promise to "obey" Commander Alexander Ramsay, R. N., when she becomes his bride on February 27, and she will be absolutely the first royal beauty to have that distinction. Never before has a princess had the temerity to break the precedent which demanded that she swear to honor her husband. When the princess stands before the famous coronation altar, which will be buried with flowers, she will promise only "to love and honor" her husband.

BOY IS DROWNED AS COMPANION IS SAVED

Springfield, Feb. 11.—Donaig MacKay, nineteen, was drowned in the Water Shop Pond after he had held Catherine Dawes, his companion, on the edge of the broken ice until rescuers pulled her from the water. The couple were skating together when they plunged through the thin ice. MacKay's body was recovered later.

HURLEY FIGHTS BRITISH SHIP EMBARGO

Washington, Feb. 11.—Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the United States Shipping Board, arrives in New York today from the Paris Peace Conference with information which will largely guide the future policy of the administration with regard to American trade.

This information is the result of the labors abroad of Mr. Hurley and of a corps of trained investigators, who have been reporting to him at Paris. It contains facts which will be startling to the majority of Americans, according to cablegrams and radio messages which have preceded Mr. Hurley to America.

Confidential documents in possession of the government indicate that Great Britain is resorting to methods not easily understood from a country which America helped win the war. Careful investigation by government officials has established the following facts, according to these documents:

1—That British vessels are leaving the port of New York with half cargoes or in ballast rather than carry American products for which European neutrals are clamoring.

2—That cables from New York and other American export houses to Scandinavia suffer an average delay of ten days. The American censor denies absolutely there is any delay in New York. The messages are sent forward, it is understood, within a few hours of their receipt. The implication is that the delay is at transfer points in Great Britain, the cables being under British control, and the relay from the transatlantic to the Norwegian cable taking place in Great Britain.

3—That, radiating from New York, there has been carried on for the last several months a vicious propaganda against the American merchant vessels built and controlled by the Shipping Board.

The Good Ship Liberty Loses Freedom of the Seas

No well-behaved ship has any right to pack up her baggage and sneak out after dark from a ship hotel without notifying the hotel clerk, according to Uncle Sam.

LANDLADY AND UNKNOWN MAN KILLED IN HOUSE

New York, Feb. 11.—Mrs. Anna Wagonhoefer, forty years old, proprietor of a rooming house in East 125th street, and an unidentified man were murdered in the woman's home early today. The skulls of the victims had been crushed with a stove lifter. Two men applied for lodging late last night and were assigned to a bedroom adjoining the kitchen. Early today, according to the daughter of Mrs. Wagonhoefer, the roomers engaged in a fist fight and were warned to be quiet. Later they renewed their disturbance and Mrs. Wagonhoefer went to their room to ask them to leave. Her failure to return aroused the fears of her daughter and an investigation led to the gruesome discovery.

EASTERN RAILROADS TO CUT FORCE OF EMPLOYES

New York, Feb. 11.—Several of the large Eastern railroads are making a survey with a view to cutting down the number of employes. The Pennsylvania, New York Central, Lehigh Valley and others are going over their books, it is learned today, with a view to reducing the number of men in their employ.

So when the good ship Liberty sneaked out Sunday night from Berthelon & Petersen's ship hotel over on Border street, East Boston, leaving behind her a $75,000 bill for internal accumulations, Uncle Sam spread the warning she should be apprehended.

But as ships don't travel on railways but on the wide blue ocean, it was thirty-six hours before Uncle Sam's agents got any word from the missing ship.

Today as the Liberty, a wooden steamship built in Portland, Me., for transport service, was steaming up New York harbor past the statue of the same name, Uncle Sam's marshal over in New York put his hand upon her and arrested her for not paying her bills in Boston.

With the steamship Liberty at the time was Captain Gustav E. Bloomberg. He had given his word to Berthelon & Petersen, through Fred A. Berthelon of the firm, that he would see the firm was paid $72,000 for the installation of certain triple expansion engines.

But they say Captain Bloomberg sneaked out with the Liberty Sunday night without paying the bill as he had promised. Neither did he secure his clearance papers. Uncle Sam was doubly offended. Hence the arrest.

Today the Liberty was libeled—which in marine terms means arrested—in New York for $75,000. The Liberty is a wooden ship of 1,500 tons gross, 246 feet long and of 1,000-horsepower. She was built for the Liberty Steamship Company of No. 17 State street.

IDENTIFY MORE LOOT OF GIRL 'RAFFLES'

Prisoner, in Suffolk Jail, Still Refuses to Tell About Herself

Identification of articles found in the room of the "Girl Raffles," as those stolen from the rooms of other young women during the last few months, goes on merrily. Meanwhile the police have made no progress in learning anything more about the identity of the young woman herself, who, when arrested, gave the name of "Mabel Norris." Locked up in Charles street Jail in default of $500 bail she steadfastly refused to talk, or to give any information regarding herself. Her replies to the questioning of the authorities is a mocking laugh.

Today the following young women identified goods found in the mysterious "Girl Raffles'" rooms as their property, stolen from their rooms:

Miss Estella Roberts, a pupil at the Gordon Bible School, a dress; Miss Wenzell of the Boston Students' Union, a book; Miss Adelaide Dodge of Radcliffe, clothing; Miss Mahoney of Radcliffe, an aviation stickpin; Miss Leona Ivers, nurse at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, a dress; Miss Grace Hart of the House of the Good Shepherd, a handbag.

The handbag stolen from Miss Hart's rooms was found nearly empty in a box strewn across the police say, their mysterious pretty young prisoner, acknowledges having stolen it.

Special Officer Hartnett of the Roxbury Crossing Station today swore out another additional warrants against the girl, charging her with breaking and entering in the daytime. These complaints will be heard when she is arraigned on Friday. They include breaking and entering Simmons College, and the larceny of a diamond ring worth $200, property of Grace E. Diehl, breaking and entering dormitories Deaconess Hospital and larceny of jewelry worth $125, property of Mary Leyden and Mildren Tropro, and breaking and entering dormitories Deaconess Hospital, and larceny of property from Eleanor Ryan.

HOUSE TO VOTE ON SOLDIERS BONUS BILL TOMORROW

Hearing in State House on Proposal to Give Them Six Months' Pay

Persons interested in the plan to give honorably discharged soldiers and sailors six months' pay bonus are expected to attend the hearing at the State House tomorrow before the legislative Federal Relations Committee on House Bill 1,230, introduced by Representative A. E. Bliss of Malden. The hearing is scheduled to begin in Room 435 at 11 a. m.

Representative Bliss' bill is in the form of a resolution urging Congress of the United States to pay all men honorably discharged from the service six months' additional pay. As Mr. Bliss will be traveling tomorrow with the Committee on Public Institutions he will be unable to appear at the hearing, but he does not desire it postponed. The bill reads as follows:

"Whereas, Thousands of soldiers and sailors in the service of their country are daily being discharged from the army or navy of the United States, and

"Whereas, Such discharged soldiers and sailors are encountering considerable difficulty in securing employment because of the conditions existing in industrial affairs of the country at this time, and

"Whereas, In the opinion of the General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts it is the duty of the national government to provide for the care and support of such discharged soldiers and sailors until such time as they secure employment, therefore be it

"Resolved, That the General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts hereby requests the Congress of the United States to pass suitable legislation for the purpose of providing six months' additional pay for soldiers or sailors upon their discharge from the service of the United States; and be it further

"Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be sent by the secretary of the Commonwealth to the President of the United States Senate, to the Speaker of the National House and to the members of the Senate and House in Congress from this State."

"DRY" PROCLAMATION FOR THE U. S. SUPREME COURT

Washington, Feb. 11.—"It's up to the Supreme Court. The constitution provides that when three-fourths of the States certify to the adoption of a constitutional amendment the Secretary of State shall issue the proclamation. If some of the States actually have not completed the process I have no way of determining that fact." This was the only comment Acting Secretary of State Polk would make today on the article published in the Providence, R. I., Journal holding that his prohibition proclamation was unconstitutional.

London Girls Have Pink Tattooed in Their Cheeks

By International News Service.

London, Feb. 11.—The pallid and sallow faces of London women are being permanently brightened and given a rosy tint by tattooists, whose experts needle complexions can be adjusted to any face.

Tattooists report that they have never done such an extensive and profitable business among women clients as now. Their work was largely devoted to men who wanted the names of sweethearts tattooed on their arms. The men are on the waiting list since the women have discovered that roseate pigments electrically placed add to their charms.

THREE EVERETT BANDITS GO TO PRISON

Fourth Suspect, Samuel Sterratt, Arrested in New York, Was Recently Married

Surrounded by a small army of plain clothes officers, three of the men who, it is charged, on December 29 held up, shot and robbed Frank R. Brown, paymaster at the Everett branch of the General Electric Company of $12,700, were brought to Boston on the Back Bay express in custody of deputy United States marshals and detectives and met at the Back Bay station by local officials.

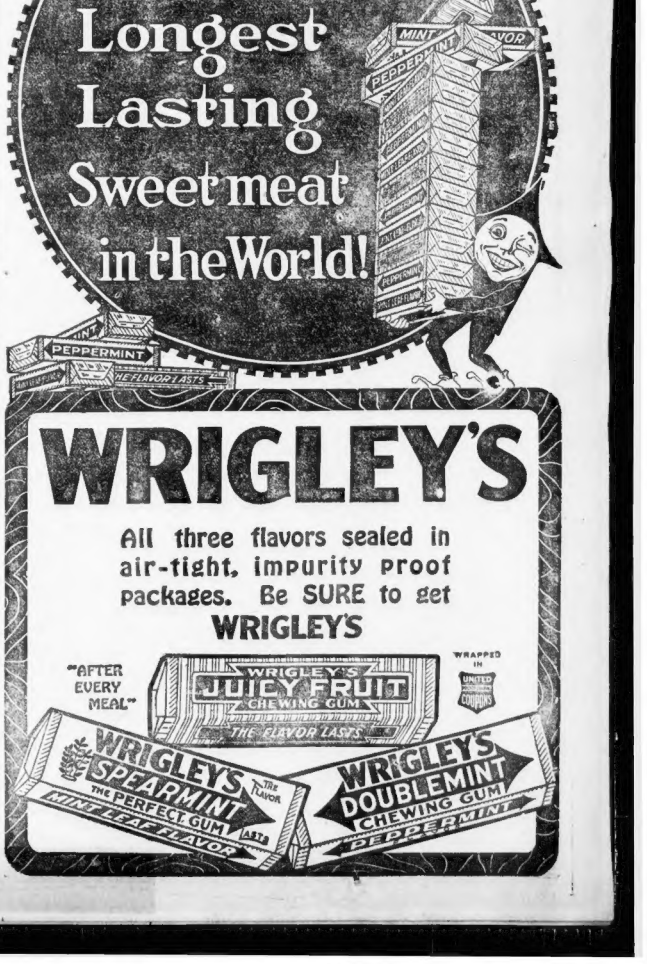
A fourth member of the band was arrested in New York after having been ordering a house in his apartment in Ninth avenue. Five weeks ago he married Miss Hyacinth Green, an attractive eighteen-year-old miss. He is Samuel Sterratt, whose picture has been positively identified and who is known to have been a companion of Richard Sweeney, John Mulhall and Hugh Owens, the three who were brought to Boston today.

The probable solution of the Everett riddle is due to Detective Sergeant Michael H. Burke, of police headquarters and the Pinkerton National Detective Agency. Burke secured information that led the Pinkertons to arrest Mulhall, Sweeney and Owens in New York.

They were arrested for robbing freight cars and convicted. At their trial they were identified by Everett witnesses as men who were in the robber car on the day Brown was shot and robbed. Sterratt's picture was also identified.

Since the robbery Sterratt has appeared in New York with an abundance of funds. He purchased a $2,000 roadster when he got married. The Pinkertons located him in New York yesterday and Detective Barney Flood arrested him.

Mulhall, Owens and Sweeney were taken to the State Prison at Charlestown today to serve two-year sentences.



"POLLY" WINS POPULARITY AT TREMONT

Comedy Staged by Belasco Proves to Be a Charming Entertainment

By FRED J. McISAAC.

"What an agreeable evening." I heard a lady say on the way up the aisle at the Tremont Theatre last evening.

Those are my sentiments exactly. "Polly with a Past," a three-act comedy by George Middleton and Guy Bolton, produced by DAVID BELASCO, is about as genuinely a way to pass an evening as anybody has yet invented.

You may have noticed the emphasis I laid on Mr. Belasco. The authors probably won't like it if they happen to read this. But truth requires one to say that "Polly with a Past" less artistically produced and with a less efficient cast wouldn't be anything very wonderful.

I heard a man say the other day that anybody could get as good results as Belasco provided they spent as much money for good actors.

Pardon me. To pick the right actor for the right part is about the hardest thing that any producer can do. If you don't believe it exhibit who where she was doing imitations of "great folk past and present."

The remarkable contrasts secured by Miss Claire, her bewitching French accent and her verve and esprit, have amply vindicated his daring decision.

In the last act of Polly a rich uncle of the young hero appears for a few brief scenes. It would have been natural to engage an ordinary "ham" uncle for such a small part. Not so Belasco. He enticed H. Reeves-Smith, one of the most skilful actors in the business, for the role and the result is several moments between the adventuress and the uncle which are pure delight.

Every role, no matter how small, is brilliantly performed. Herbert Yost, as the inoffensive fiance, was capital indeed. Cyril Scott and George Stuart Christie, as the two helpful chums of that individual, were very amusing. Betty Linley, as the original fiancee of the young hero, was successful in convincing the audience that she wouldn't have suited Mr. Yost so well as Polly.

Lloyd Neal did a wonderful bit as Stiles, a "reformed" drunkard, and equally commendable was the scene by Francis Verdi as Petrusia, a piano virtuoso. Louise Galloway, Adah Harlon and the others in the cast were excellent. There were no weak spots.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE—"The Still Alarm," one of the greatest of all melodramas ever placed upon the screen, was enjoyed by the patrons of the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody can Tell when you Darken Gray, Faded Hair with Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.—Advertisement.

Plays That Remain

MAJESTIC THEATRE—McIntyre and Heath started on the seventh week of their phenomenal business at the Majestic Theatre last evening in "Hello, Alexander," and there is every indication that there will be a repetition of capacity houses this week.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE—There is no denying the great popularity of "The Crowded Hour," the stirring and gripping play written by Edgar Selwyn and Channing Pollock, which last night began another prosperous week of its Boston engagement at Selwyn's Park Square Theatre.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE — Comedy reigns supreme in "Lombardi, Ltd.," the play by Frederic and Fanny Hatton, which Oliver Morosco is presenting at the Plymouth Theatre with Leo Carrillo as the star.

COPLEY THEATRE — Bernard Shaw's brilliant comedy, "The Doctor's Dilemma," began its fourth and last week at the Copley Theatre last evening, a large audience giving it cordial approval both to the play and to its acting by the Henry Jewett Players.

COLONIAL THEATRE—Fred Stone in "Jack and Jill" began the eighth week of the engagement at the Colonial Theatre yesterday, appears to be in the theatre as beautifully as elsewhere, and the continuous series of crowded houses bears testimony to this.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—"The Better Ole" began its sixth week at the Hollis Street Theatre last evening. This delightful comedy with music which is based upon the comic scenes of the war by Captain Bruce Bairnsfather has just the right quality of extravagant humor to appeal to all ages.

ORPHEUM THEATRE—One of the great dancing and singing acts on this season at the Orpheum Theatre was offered yesterday by the Virginia Steppers, who headed the bill. Another big feature act was that of Barron and Burt, local favorites, who presented a varied round of comicalities, singing and dancing. Others on the bill were Emily Smiley and Company in a one-act comedy drama, "The Family Tree," who sang several new popular songs; Harmon and Harmon in songs and dances, and the Norvelles. On the screen there were shown the latest news pictures, a Mack Sennett comedy, and the photoplay, "The One Woman," Thomas Dixon's new photoplay treating of a theme especially alive in the minds of the world today.

"ON TRIAL" AT CASTLE IS NOVELTY

The Castle Square Stock Company, next week to be christened "Arlington Square," opened to a record Monday night audience in "On Trial," by Elmer L. Reizenstein, last evening.

The policy of changing plays every week, no matter how popular they are, has proved beyond doubt the virtue of such a scheme.

"On Trial" is well remembered in Boston as one of the first dramas to imitate the movie shows, and give a quick succession of set-backs which throughout the performance keep pulling the observer back to the court room where the trial is going on.

Each time a star witness begins an important story the lights go down, soft footed "grips" remove scenery and furniture, and presto, there is the scene described to court.

"Mrs. Trask, will you kindly take the witness stand," says Lawyer Gray. The witness, in answer to a question, begins to relate what she can remember of the fatal shooting—blackness—for two minutes the murder is acted out, then as quickly the court reverses again much as one's mind would wander from one thought to another.

As a novelty, it is interesting, as a truly artistic method of playwriting is questionable, though its novel, partly stage finger at art or no art. From the wings the performance is well done and convincing. Curiously, however, no one character appears often enough to become familiar, though seven or eight of the cast impress their characters and personalities upon the audience.

There is Mark Kent as District Attorney Gray, quiet, effective, and determined to see justice done. There is Mrs. Trask, Betty Hammond, first witness and injured wife whose husband is shot; Joseph Sweeney, as Oscar Wilcox as villain, this time the murdered man. Dudley Ayres, as Strickland (Isiah Winslow) has several opportunities to display her talents as an emotional actress, while Doris, her nine-year-old daughter, is accentably taken by Marion Goade.

The jury is well selected and has all the ear marks of a genuine twelve men and true to be found in the Boston court house.

Next week is "Some Baby."

SUBURBAN PICTURE HOUSES

Attractive bills prevail at all the suburban and neighborhood houses this week.

At the Brighton Theatre, Brighton, will be seen today Jack Pickford in "Jack and Jill" and Patty Arbuckle comedy and on Wednesday's bill will include "By the World Forget," with Hedda Nova, also "Lure of the Circus" and other pictures.

At the Institute Theatre, East Cambridge, will be seen all-star cast pictures, including serial comedies and weekly news.

At the Central Square Theatre, East Boston, Wednesday and Thursday, the bill will include Monogue Love in "The Rough Neck" and Madge Kennedy in "Kingdom of Youth," and other up-to-date pictures.

One of the most stupendous bills ever given is being shown for these three days at the Franklin Park Theatre. Heading the picture program is Fred Stone in his latest production, "Under the Top."

A bill just to the liking of the clientele of the Dudley Theatre, Roxbury, opened the week yesterday, and the large audiences were amply satisfied with "The Silver King," that delightful melodrama in which William Faversham is starred, and the Alice Brady picture, "Her Great Chance."

Manager Lynch of the Lynn Casino is offering an excellent motion picture program for the skating multitude which goes on rollers each evening.

At the Park Park Theatre, Hyde Park, will be seen Wednesday and Thursday Leo Walsh in "On the Jump," "Sunshine Comedy" and other pictures.

At the Everett Theatre, Everett, for Wednesday and Thursday Goldwyn presents Geraldine Farrar in the biggest picture success of her career, "The Hell Cat," a story of a Carmen of the prairie and her fight for love. Paramount presents John Barrymore, the popular American actor, in "Here Comes the Bride," a comedy just suited to him and full of laughs and comic situations.

Folks in Quincy will find a good bill at this Music Hall Wednesday, including Norma Talmadge in "Panthea," Dean in "She Hired a Husband," Leah Baird and Sheldon Lewis in "Through the Lonely Night," the fifth episode of "World's Champion" and Pathe comedy, "Nothing but Trouble."

At the Union Square, Somerville, Wednesday and Thursday, will be seen Louis Glaum in "Wellock."

SHUBERT THEATRE—"Take It from Me," a new musical comedy with a good cast and a big chorus, opened an engagement at the Shubert Theatre last night. The piece will be reviewed in Thursday's American.

OPERA STAR IS HEADLINER AT KEITH'S

Mlle. Marguerita Sylva, prima donna of the Chicago Opera Association, is the headliner of an ordinary bill at Keith's this week. Mlle. Sylva, contrary to the usual act contributed to the vaudeville stage of operatic stars, departs from the realms of grand opera and almost wholly confines her performance to a series of semi-popular songs. With the exception of the aria from "Carmen" all her songs are new and dainty. She was accompanied by Miss Wollerson at the piano.

The comedy end of the bill was in the hands of Ruth Roye, billed as "comedienne of syncopation," the Ward Brothers as "Bertie and Archie," and Joe Harris and Flossie Campbell in "The Avi-ate-her." Miss Roye has a number of character songs, which, although not exactly refined, are very funny and go over well.

The Ward Brothers as a foppish English "Johnnie" and a wide-awake American spring a lot of funny gags in which the English way of taking Yankee jokes is much played upon, and wind up the act with some very nifty dancing. In "The Avi-ate-her," Joe Morris gets over a lot of very "highbrow" comedy, while his partner, Flossie Campbell, has a fine stage appearance and a pleasing voice.

Other acts were the Garcinetti Brothers in a hat-throwing acrobatic act, assisted by a very clever dog; William Cutty, a "symphonic minstrel" singing and Hollister in "Hit in California"; Kalmar and Brown in "England," and Lalla Selbini in a bicycle act.

MODERN AND BEACON THEATRES—Eugene Walter's famous masterpiece of drama, "Paid in Full," came to the screen as one of the two first-run photoplays shown on the bill at the Modern and Beacon Theatres yesterday. Pauline Frederick, the beautiful and talented actress of emotional roles, was pictured in the leading feminine part, that of the wife who was married to the weakling husband whose lack of decent honor precipitated the crisis in the woman's life. Stirring, human drama as was this in stage form, it appears to be further intensified through the graphic and comprehensive qualities of a well-taken picture, and the screen version is a triumph of the cinema. The other photoplay unrolled the comic and human qualities of Alice Hegan Rice's "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

WALDRON'S CASINO—Burlesque audiences have long since learned that when they go to see a Max Spiegel show they are taking no chances. They are always certain to see the most talented performers, the prettiest girls, scenic marvels or a most unique character, costume creations which are out of the ordinary, and an attention to minor detail which makes every Spiegel production well-night flawless. "The Merry Rounders" at Waldron's Casino has delighted audiences for three seasons.

LANCASTER THEATRE—A pair of photoplays of remarkable excellence in pleasure giving qualities was presented at the Lancaster Theatre yesterday. Gladys Brockwell was shown pictured in a thrilling story of modern society, "The Call of the Soul," in which she is called upon to reveal her best gifts for emotional acting, and in the other photoplay, "A Girl of No Regrets," Peggy Hyland is pictured as a vampiric young woman with profound disregard for others' sensibilities.

BOSTON THEATRE—Ruth Clifford is the star in "The Game's Up," the feature photo-play at the Boston Theatre this week. It is one of the most fascinating pictures ever shown in Boston.

GLOBE THEATRE—One of the worthiest photoplay bills of the season was offered yesterday at Loew's Globe Theatre. The program marked the first showings in Boston of Thomas Dixon's new photoplay, "The One Woman," and the author of the classic, "The Birth of a Nation," has selected even a larger and more vital theme than that dealing with post Civil War days. It tells of a young clergyman who absorbs the doctrines of extreme Socialism, and in his adherence to the cult casts off his wife to take unto himself a woman worker for the cause. But he finds that human nature has not changed even though altruism apparently is inspired in them, and when she takes to herself another mate he commits murder. The other photoplay showed Dorothy Dalton in "Hard Rolled," a story in which comedy had large place.

PICKED PARROT AS CLOSEST FRIEND

New York, Feb. 11.—Edward Alcott, who died in this city last August, leaving a will which two wives are now disputing, was particular as to the company he kept, according to witnesses who appeared in the Surrogate's Court, where Mrs. Elizabeth Alcott is seeking to prevent Mrs. Annie Blunderfield Alcott from receiving the bulk of the estate.

Alcott's favorite friend was a parrot he had christened "Billy." He had a habit of strolling through the corridors of the Park Avenue Hotel here with the bird perched upon his shoulder and would talk to "Billy" in preference to a human being.

"Billy understands me perfectly," the dead man used to say.

"Don't you, Billy?" he would question the bird and the feathery creature would reply:

"Sure, Ed, shoot."

At other times Mr. Alcott would go about accompanied by a dog, always having either one or the other of his pets with him.

TREMONT TEMPLE—The film version of Dr. Selma Lagerlof's famous story, "The Girl from the Marsh Croft," was shown to a crowded house last evening. Despite the conventionality of the theme and the several weak points in the continuity, the production as a whole went one more than the average American feature as far as entertainment value was concerned. The story is laid in Sweden, with an entirely Swedish cast, headed by Greta Almroth, who portrays the part of Helga, the girl from the Marsh Croft. She is portrayed by Martenson. Rather than have him swear a false oath in the court, she withdraws the charge and goes forth to do the best she can with her babe. Gudmund Erlanson comes into her life and in time opens his eyes to the love she bears for him. In the end he marries her and makes her the future mistress of his estate. The wedding scenes are very impressive. There are some other pictures on the bill also.

WILBUR THEATRE—"Little Symplicity," a bright musical comedy direct from a long run in New York, opened an engagement at the Wilbur last night. Walter Catlett heads a very excellent cast. The piece will be reviewed by Mr. McIsaac in Wednesday's American.

HOWARD ATHENAEUM—Fun and plenty of it ruled the day at the Howard yesterday as here the "Hello Paree" burlesque company is putting forth a show of real merit. It serves to introduce Jules Jacobs, Lew Golden, Elsie Donnelly, Nellis and Emilie Nice and a chorus of beauties.

PIMPLES 3 YEARS CUTICURA HEALS

All Over Body, Face, Arms, Back and Limbs. Itched.

"I had many pimples all over my body, face, arms, back and limbs. They were hard and red, and they itched very much which caused me many weary nights of lost sleep. I began scratching, and I never could stop until I saw the blood come.

"This trouble lasted three years. I made up my mind to try a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bought more, and in a week I was healed." (Signed) John Palma, 85½ Elm St., Lawrence, Mass., Sept. 6, 1918.

These fragrant emoldients are all you need for all toilet purposes.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address post-card: "Cuticura, Dept. M, Boston." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c.

Thousands of nervous, thin, weak, aching, impoverished men and women are daily getting vast benefits from taking Cadomene Tablets. They are not a "cureall," but just a wonderfully effective tonic to the organs of the body. Sold by druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

NOT A PARTICLE OF DANDRUFF OR A FALLING HAIR

Save your hair! Double its beauty in just a few moments

"Danderine" makes your hair thick, glossy, wavy and beautiful

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair, and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but soon fluffy and full-growing all over the scalp.

Danderine puts new hair what it needs to grow. It is to the hair what sunshine and rain are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, stimulates and helps nature in her processes. Moisture, coaxing and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

A few moments' use of delightful Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy your hair is, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is simply marvelous—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy and have an appearance of abundance, an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents and prove that your hair is as pretty and as soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.—Advertisement.

Keeps Hair Curly In Most Trying Weather

You needn't worry about damp or windy weather spoiling the wavy appearance of your hair if you use the simple curling method. And you can dress and arrange it without having your fingers sticking to your head, as well.

If you've never tried this simple method by all means procure a package of Parisian Sage from any druggist and follow the accompanying directions. It will enable you to have the most beautiful waves and curls, as natural looking as you could possibly desire. And, what is more to the point, the curliness is quickly and easily produced, and lasts much longer than where the heated iron is used. When the hair is dressed for the day, it remains soft and fluffy. The natural lustre and beauty of the hair is greatly enhanced by the use of this harmless product. Therefore, as a hair tonic as well as beneficial dressing for the hair, it is quite pleasant to use and costs only a trifle, at nearly every store.—Advertisement.

dozen. But the Boston wholesale rates on prime fresh Westerns yesterday fell only one cent from Saturday's price.

Big, when the Chicago quotation went up 1½ cents yesterday, the Boston quotation loses no time in hopping up a half-cent and getting back a whole cent of yesterday's drop.

Fancy hennery and Eastern eggs remained firm at wholesale on the Boston Exchange today at 49 to 52.

LARD UP HALF A CENT.

The wholesale price of pure lard went up a half cent in the pound wholesale today to 27¼ cents.

Print butter held firm at 58, tub butter firm at 49 and new cheese at 32.

The tightening market on storage eggs showed in the quotation today of 37 to 38, compared with 36 to 38 yesterday. This was what Jobbers call "cut one on the inside price."

Housewives Are Keeping Tabs on Dealers by Using American's Blanks

Greater Boston housewives are invited to fill out and send in to the Boston American the blanks printed from day to day to show the retail prices they were charged by provision dealers on butter, eggs, cheese and lard.

Retail prices listed by the retailers themselves are also printed.

G. E. Loring, proprietor of the store, said that his retail prices of fresh eggs on Feb. 6 was 65 and not 70 cents per dozen; also that these eggs were purchased by him from a nearby farmer and not on the Boston Fruit Exchange. He said they cost him 60 cents a dozen. The cheese, he added, was not 46 cents retail, but 45 cents, also it was not new cheese but old cheese, bought last June, which sells higher than new cheese. The other retail prices, he said, were correct.

ACHES AND PAINS QUICKLY RELIEVED

You'll find Sloan's Liniment softens the severe rheumatic ache

Put it on freely. Don't rub it in. Just let it penetrate naturally. What a sense of soothing relief soon follows!

External aches, stiffness, soreness, cramped muscles, strained sinews, back "cricks"—those ailments can't fight off the relieving qualities of Sloan's Liniment. Clean, convenient, economical. Ask any druggist for it. 30c, 60c, $1.20.

Sloan's Liniment Kills Pain

HOW TO GET RID OF CORNS

A Simple, Safe and Reliable Way. No Pain or Soreness

Thanks to a new discovery made from a Japanese product women will soon be wearing smaller and prettier shoes than ever. Corns are to be a thing of the past. A new preparation, called Ice-Mint, is said to make any corn or callous shrivel right up and lift off easily. Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes can be lifted right out root and all after a touch or two of Ice-Mint. It's wonderful. No pain and not a bit of soreness while applying it, or afterward. You are warned to stop cutting and trimming their corns and avoid the danger of blood poison. Simply get a few cents' worth of Ice-Mint from any druggist, and from that very second that it touches that sore, tender corn your tired, aching feet will feel so cool, easy and comfortable that you will just gush with relief. Take it of—put a little touch of that cooling, soothing Ice-Mint and your feet will be like those of the real Japanese sweet of fine, healthy little feet, and a high appreciation for women who wear high heel shoes and men who have to stand on their feet all day.

Be Careful in Using Soap on Your Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water, and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Advertisement.

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

If you have roaring, buzzing noises in your ears, are getting hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone with the Catarrhal trouble of the ears, is hard of hearing or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

RAILWAY UNION SUPPORTS WAR BONUS FIGHT

The Boston American's petition for six months' pay for soldiers is bounding toward the 200,000 mark with the receipt of thousands of signatures from men and women throughout New England.

While these signatures were pouring in from various cities and towns in New England, union labor was again placing its stamp of decided approval upon the war bonus plan at a meeting of Prospect Hill Lodge of Somerville, members of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America.

This organization unanimously went on record as favoring the American's plan to give the returning soldiers six months' pay, according to Secretary George A. List, who declares that many of its members have made the supreme sacrifice.

MORE THAN 184,000 SIGNATURES.

With the total of signatures above 184,000, 100 were sent in by the Thompson Box Company of Cambridge, whose employes want to see the soldiers suitably rewarded when they come home.

The George Close Company, confectionery manufacturers, also forwarded several hundred signatures and several hundred were sent up by the Bartlett-Somes Company, of Lynn, shoe manufacturers, and hundreds of others were sent by volunteer workers who are interested in seeing justice done to the service men.

The Punkapoag Grange of that village, which is a part of Canton, is going to devote all other claims to fund besides having been immortalized in verse by the poet, Aldrich. Secretary Thomas Horgan, forwarding the names, states that the grange is for the six months' pay plan to a man. The women weren't overlooked either in circulating the petition.

A hearing on the six months' pay plan, now before the Committee on Federal Relations at the State House in the form of a resolution by Representative A. E. Bliss of Malden, is to be held at Room 425 at the State House on Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. This resolution urges Congress to pay discharged soldiers and sailors six months' wages, and many of its supporters are to go before the committee and speak in its favor at the hearing.

CONGRESS PLANS TO ACT.

Only a few days remain before definite Congressional action is to be taken on the petition and volunteer workers are urged to send in signed petitions as quickly as possible.

Former Senator Charles A. Dean of Wakefield approached by a volunteer worker and asked to sign the petition said: "You bet I will. The American is doing great work for the soldiers."

A Cambridge widow who has three sons in the service, two of whom are still overseas, and another in South Carolina, besides four other children, aged from two to eight years, for whom she is caring, declares her boys are going to need the money badly when they get home because they have contributed to her support.

Though the Soldiers' Service Bureau is making every effort to see that the fighting men get in this form the recognition that is due them, for the other work of the bureau for soldiers, sailors and marines and their families is not being neglected.

Soldiers' Service Bureau Answers All Queries From Relatives and Friends

The Soldiers' Service Bureau of the Boston American is dedicated to the purpose of doing things for the soldiers and sailors of Uncle Sam. It is for officers and men alike. Answers to questions will be published in the American daily, and many personal services will be done for the soldiers and sailors as cited below.

The department is not merely operated as a question and answer column. It is co-operating with similar departments in Hearst's New York American, Chicago Examiner, Atlanta Georgian, San Francisco Examiner and Los Angeles Examiner. The headquarters is in Washington. Attorneys will answer questions of a legal nature and undertake many kinds of legal work in the courts for officers and enlisted men in behalf of the Boston American and its associated Hearst newspapers.

Please write any suggestion you have for widening the activities of this department.

Many requests for information concerning soldiers in France have been received, but with insufficient information. With the vast number of men overseas, and innumerable units in various branches, it is impossible to give an intelligent answer unless the inquiry is complete, with company number, branch of service, etc. Adhering to this will facilitate earlier attention to letters received by this department.

Address all communications to Soldiers' Service Bureau, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston. Letters marked "confidential" will be treated. Men of the army and navy, let us help you.

Persons finding the discharge papers of soldiers or sailors will make every effort to return them to their owners. Discharges are not to be duplicated. The War Department can only issue a certificate that the discharge has been given. Frequently the owner loses his original, and would greatly appreciate its return.

E. E. R., SALEM—Company B, 26th Engineers, is in the First Army, and although it has not been assigned for early convoy home, the chances are that it soon will be. The latest report gives the location as Angy-le-France. The last part of your question will have to be taken up with the proper authorities at Washington.

Petition to the Secretary of War to Send Soldiers Home With Six Months' Pay

Sign this petition, get your friends to sign it, and forward it to the Boston American, 80 Summer Street, Boston, Mass.

To the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War:

The undersigned respectfully urge you to return to their homes as soon as possible the soldiers who have accomplished so brilliantly every object America had in the war.

We urge, also, that you obtain the necessary authority to pay these men their military wages for six months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can obtain useful and remunerative employment.

'FAIR PLAY' FOR BOLSHEVIKS, SAYS DILLON

By DR. E. J. DILLON.

Special Cable to the Boston American and Philadelphia Public Ledger.

(Copyright in the United States and Canada by the Philadelphia Ledger Company. Copyright in Europe by the London Daily Telegraph.)

Paris, Feb. 11.—The response of the Soviet government to the allied powers has imparted fresh activity to the vital question of the relations between Russia and the remainder of the world, the final solution of which is still impossible to anticipate.

The wording of M. Tchitcherin's reply is psychologically admirable and there is an ironical touch in the stress he lays upon the western governments' eagerness to receive their money.

The general opinion here is that the Peace Conference cannot refuse to take further action in the matter, seeing that their suggestion is being met in an ostensibly liberal spirit and considerable concessions are being promised for the privilege of official intercourse with them.

Whether the move was wise or unpolitic would be unfruitful to discuss at this late hour when the world is already confronted with its earliest consequences, among which I reckon the discouragement of all those other democratic parties which contain the constructive elements.

I am personally inclined to believe that the action taken by the Peace Conference has dealt them a stunning blow from which they will not easily recover.

The League of Nations cannot discharge any of the moderating functions expected of it unless a strong, united and democratic Russia cooperate with it by maintaining the peace in Eastern Europe and in the interest of the civilized world if she is to contribute efficaciously and speedily to the pacification and reorganization of the great Slav people.

The four democratic governments of anti-Bolshevism with whose official representatives I have today conferred are still firmly resolved to hold aloof from the delegates of Lenine and Trotzky and refuse to entertain any proposals from whomsoever they emanate tending to effect a compromise with them. As all these governments by this time have communicated their views to their delegates here, these have decided to present an official reply to the invitation of the great powers tomorrow.

If the conference could convert the Bolsheviks to sound, democratic principles and induce them to abandon class tyranny, organized parasitism and inhuman cruelty, then they would have gained a more glorious and a more difficult victory than over the Teutons, for in this case Bolshevism would have committed suicide in order to obtain official recognition.

From the German press, which I daily peruse, it is evident they discern fissures in the alliance and will insert their wedges in them. That they will tamely accept dictated terms is the view of optimists.

Today it is the expressly declared intention of the German government, if we may accept utterances delivered by its chief Chancellor Ebert at Weimar. The most noteworthy passage of his inaugural discourse was that in which he said:

"The entire German government might be constrained to renounce an ulterior collaboration with the pourparlers and throw upon our adversaries the whole weight of responsibility of the new world organization."

The peoples who were promised a new heaven on earth are bitterly disappointed and the symptoms of their temper are becoming more disquieting at the risk of being set down as an alarmist.

Germany Reaping as She Sowed, Declares Maximilian Harden

By MAXIMILIAN HARDEN.

(Especially Translated for Universal Service.)

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Berlin, Feb. 11.—(via Amsterdam and London.)—The words of two apocalypses have come true. They are words written in the books in which all that which humanity is experiencing today, all that through which our poor, crushed homeland is living, is predesignated in terrible hieroglyphics.

Everything, war, murder, demoralization, massacre, the monster rising from the sea, the fire, rain, even the plague, which we suffered and which we are suffering, is pictured in those biblical chapters in incredicable colors.

There is but one thing left that has not been fulfilled, and never shall be; civil war, the bloody warfare between integral parts of a nation.

To frustrate the realization of this prophesy we must today concentrate all the strength of souls, all the power of our brains. The concentrated strength of all thinking hearts must be enlisted in this strife.

For you may be as sure as you are of the end of every life. The menace is formidable. And—let us be frank—those who believed that all would end in a "satisfactory" spectacle, and that one fine morning we all would wake up and all would be well again, those who reasoned that have never fathomed the things that were and the things that are.

It was in August, 1918, that the will, the sentiment, and the strength of our people broke down—the very things which through four years had been the bulwark of this realm—the things to which only today we can pay the homage that is due them; the people the gratitude to whom we must manifest not with shallow words, but with deeds—deeds which shall prove what they have suffered and bled for.

These people had been told—and it had been hammered into their brains:

"All around you lurks hatred and envy, and the hostility of the entire world!"

They had been told, further:

"We have been treacherously attacked and must defend ourselves!"

With cunning artifice something was thus achieved the grandeur of which a just observer cannot deny even today—a rhythm, a whirl of national emotion which forced into its charmed circle even those who in the interment of their hearts were convinced of the untruth of the watchword.

MEMORIES OF 1914.

It is painful—almost physically painful—to think of that in this hour. But, no doubt, a shred of memory is left in all of us, of that which happened in August, 1914. There wasn't one—scarcely one—who in those days could extricate himself from that whirlwind.

And it is perhaps not useless to recall that a man whose name has been on all lips in these days—Dr. Karl Liebknecht, then a member of the Reichstag, himself was so carried along by the 'rhythm' that suddenly he felt himself quite intimately related to the 'patriots' and at Liege, making a speech from the automobile of the German military governor, he spoke in a vein in which later on his arch-enemies spoke.

Such was the irresistible force of that wave. Every one among us was carried away by it, at least for minutes. To think of that is instructive today, and it is necessary.

For now (we want to be honest, don't we?) after all these greater and nobler experiences, that wave will not down. All round me I feel depression, dull anxiety, fear of the future; everywhere I sense souls that are deeply hung by shadows.

Dear fellow citizens, ban this fear. You did not tremble before a world of foes, a world of nations that were pictured to you as irreconcilable arch enemies. And now—is it possible?—you are going to tremble before Germans—people born upon your own German soil?

Vision, feeling and presentiment point to the seeds of the fear. Woe to us if they point correctly. If we don't all of us succeed in creating harmony of soul, and in creating among the people a spirit that will resound through our fatherland still more mightily than did the national will to defence in August, 1914, then we are lost.

(NOTE—In the foregoing article the Universal Service presents exclusively the first instalment of a remarkable speech by Maximilian Harden, the German pre-brand journalist, delivered recently before a huge German audience in which The famous editor of the Zukunft sheds light upon the war and its issues as seen by him.)

SPANISH WAR VETERANS TO HONOR MAINE HEROES

On Saturday evening, in Faneuil Hall, the United Spanish War Veterans of Boston and vicinity will hold memorial exercises in honor of the 250 or more men who lost their lives through the blowing up of the U. S. battleship Maine, twenty-one years ago. The exercises will be open to the public and a special invitation is extended to the veterans of the great European war.

Addresses will be made by Mayor Peters, Secretary Langtry, Comrade Edwin P. Stanley, department commander of the G. A. A., and John J. Mitchell, U. S. marshal for the district of Boston. Frederic E. Dowling, president of the Boston Municipal Council, U. S. W. V., will preside.

Church to Give Dance

The parishioners of St. Peter and Paul Church, West Broadway, South Boston, are arranging a dance and whist, to be given in the Municipal Building, Wednesday evening, February 26.

PIGEON FLIES FROM BOSTON TO BURLINGTON

The carrier pigeon "General Clarence R. Edwards" flew today to Fort Ethan Allen, Burlington, Vt. This is its second trial in making that distance. It was accompanied by six other birds, all marked "Y. D."

The bird Edwards made its last trip in a little short of twenty-four hours. Major Foster Veitenheimer, signal corps officer at army headquarters, is in charge of the pigeon section.

BENTLEY, ANOTHER WAR HERO, IS BOUNCED BY RED SOX

By NICK FLATLEY.

LIEUTENANT JACK BENTLEY, twice cited for bravery in battle with the doughboys overseas, is a first baseman who might prove mighty valuable to not a few big league clubs this season. He has the natural qualifications a ball player needs, and he also has the stout heart that makes champions, as his war record shows.

He has just been released by the Red Sox, who do not seem in the least anxious to keep any of the service athletes. In addition to Bentley, Janvrin, Shore and Duffy Lewis, three of Boston's big favorites, have been let out. However, that's apart from the question. Bentley has the goods, and was lauded far and wide as a wonder when the American League champions signed him up.

It mightn't be a bad idea for George Washington Grant, new Brave owner, to look into the case. War heroes—and Bentley is certainly one of the greatest—are going to be big assets. Then, again, the Braves are likely to need a first baseman. Konetchy has declared he is not inclined to play this year. He's growing old in addition and is undoubtedly dissatisfied with the salary the club has offered him.

The Braves have the inside track on Holke, who will be let out by the Giants when Chase is attached to that club, but that youngster isn't the best in the world, though he is a whole lot better than New York critics have been trying to make him out. But Bentley is good enough to have Jack Dunn of Baltimore work for a month to get him back, and Jack is a pretty good judge of diamond athletes.

After throwing up his chance to step into the big leagues to enlist and play the bigger game, Lieutenant Bentley would seem to have a real berth waiting for him when he gets back. It would only be his just reward.

Title Battle Headed for New York or Chicago.

NOW that Jack Dempsey has signed the well-known papers for the big scrap with Jess Willard, all that remains is to have the spot for the conflict determined. Despite wires from small towns in the wild parts of the land, it looks more and more as if either Chicago or New York would get the big show.

Of course, the country's biggest city is out of the question just now, but it will be a real possibility if the bill before the Legislature of the State is passed. And the judges of such things in New York are now inclined to believe the act will be put on the books when it comes to a final vote.

It could be arranged in Chicago if the promoters out that way get together, and the chances are T. Rickard will increase harmony, provided legislative action forces him to turn his attention away from New York.

Our friend, Fred Dyer, who has been boxing instructor at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., in trying to get the big mitsup for his military athletic headquarters. He claims that there is the room, and, as the property belongs to the government, no State laws would interfere with the performance. Fred has the right idea, but not much more of putting it over. You "gotta" give him credit for trying, at all events.

Another Sea-Fighter Wants to Battle on Shore.

ONE Johnny Hialdine claims the welterweight championship of the U. S. navy. He has met many of Uncle Sam's sea-going boxers, and still can claim what he does, showing that he's got something, at least. Now he is back in Boston on of the service. He has learned to like fighting so well that he wishes to keep it up. He challenges all the welterweights hereabouts, with Johnny Veto or Louie Powers preferred, to start with.

Which reminds us that Harry Edelu has his new battler, Tommy Elm here in our city, and is looking for action with him. Tommy, of course, wants a crack at Charley Parker, but then so do all the lightweights.

Manager Harry offers to put up $100 to bind a match with Parker, or, if that cannot be done, is willing to do the same for Donovan, Downs, Buckley, Carlson, McRae or Finney Boyle.

Unicorn Meet to Have All Glitter of Yore.

THE glory that was the B. A. A.'s in other years will all be back at the annual indoor meet, according to Manager George V. Brown. The greatest athletes in the country—among them Simpson, Campbell and Murchison—have entered. The schoolboys will flock to the front in their initial post-bellum chance.

One of the greatest meets in the history of the Unicorn affair, which has ever been a headliner, is in prospect, take it from the remarks passed out at a dinner tendered to the press by Chairman Albert Geiger, Jr., and the athletic committee. But the most thrilling speech of all was made by Larry Sweeney, who described his joy at the return of the annual Marathon in five very vigorous words, starting "It's a——"

JOE STECHER TO MEET GOOD ONE IN MARTINSON

Joe Stecher is expected to have a stiff job on his hands in his meeting with Paul Martinson at the Grand Opera House Thursday night. Promoter Tuohey picked off about the classiest attraction in sight when he paired this team.

With Patsy McCarthy on the injured list, Tuohey is forced to rearrange his preliminaries. He will probably put in two pairs of some of the crack home talent.

LARRY WILLIAMS HOLDS GIBBONS TO DEAD HEAT

Buffalo, Feb. 11.—Larry Williams' aggressiveness earned him a draw in his ten-round bout with Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul, at the Velodrome A. C. Williams crowded Gibbons most of the way, but the westerner's stiff jabs to the head allowed him to make it an even affair.

TWO AND THREE PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER WITH "BUGS" BAER.

LOOKS like the League of Nations is going to be a League of Crapshooters. The Sultan of Cold Turkey has got the bug. Rolled away his gold-filled throne on two sixes. Lost all his velvet and started to fade his harem against a set of bones propelled by a Georgia dinge who broke his razor cutting service stripes on the Kaiser's coat tails.

Smoke started to win the war with a pair of top heavy dice. When the Sult was looking west he'd throw 'em east. Got a rag out, let it ride and sprained his wrist throwing naturals. Only two hundred wives stood between the Sult and being a bachelor, when some sucker blew a police whistle and pulled the armistice stuff. Made the smoke sore, as he was going to tote the plunder back to Georgia and open up a Turkish laundry.

SMOKE claimed the armistice didn't include dice. Sult started to hedge when he saw the Georgia boy making the bones stand on their hind legs and beg. It was razors against scimetars. Dinge carved a boulevard through three thousand miles of Turkish soldiers and floated back to Georgia, using his shoes as a raft.

Score by innings:

Sultan's babies needed 200 new pairs of high-heeled carpet slippers. Custodian of the Royal Bosphorous Dice trotted out the lil' dotted cheaters and the Sult cut loose. First toss was bad news. Second throw was a natural. Sult pegged the whole dime, and Big Dick was the stranger in the front pew.

Sult shot over him, under him and all around him, but Big Dick never gave him a tumble. Long sickness is sure death. Sult shook a five and a four and mitted the thin dime, thinking she was a flock of fives.

SULT had burned the money. Smoke laid low, knowing that a scared rabit never comes back. Sult's luck was carrying a crutch. He read a four and a three on the next ride, and knew it was his epitaph. Sult's luck had turned sour like milk in a thunderstorm.

While the Sult toddled down into the cellar to gyp the gas meter, the Georgia bird switched the speckled cubes.

Sult came back with his fez full of plugged quarters. The King can do no wrong. However, he can guess 'em wrong, and the dinge sent the Sult back to the gas meter with seven naturals in a row like chickens on a roost.

Sult was praying to the beard of his grandfather and the smoke prayed to Mr. Gillette, the man who made razors safe for camp meetings. Three more rolls of the miracle bones, and the Georgia gent had the Sultan's grandfather looking smooth-shaved.

BETWEEN watching the bones and running down to the gas meter, the Sult was puffing like a sewing machine trying to pull a freight train over the Blue Ridge Mountains. Sul prayed for the strength of the bull and the eye of the hawk that he might make this dog of an infidel look like two sixes. Sult was praying in Turkish and dice have no ears.

Sult, even the generals and maid into the Royal Nursery, where he shook four hundred of his kids' clay banks down for the buttons. Smoke never even stopped to oil his elbow. Never teed a nothing during a fight.

Sult faded fifty wives against the next toss, but the train never stopped at his station. He chased the train down the track with fifty more wives, but the engineer wore blinders. Dinge was wondering where he could get a hundred washtubs from, when the Sult piped there was something rotten in a country much nearer home than Denmark.

Sult had lamped a lot of naturals in his life, but he never saw 'em rattle by like Fords on a Detroit boulevard. The dinge needed those naturals.

It takes a lot of violins to make a philharmonic orchestra. One natural is sweet music, but the Georgia Boy was going back to a land where a drinking man has to have a keg anchored outside the three-mile limit. That takes money and he was there to get it.

THE Sult thumbed the magic bones and saw one was all fours and the other all threes. That spells seven and seven spells trouble. The Royal Turkish Atrocities started to gun that smoke and the smoke answered 'em back with his razor.

He wore that razor right down to a knitting needle and then aimed his dogs for the nearest ocean. Swam so far his feet turned into fins. Landed in Georgia and was so thirsty that he had to drink water. If the Sultan hadn't got wise, Georgia would have had the finest Turkish propelled laundry in the works. One hundred washtubs and all going like subway ticket choppers at 6 o'clock.

Dinge still has his loaded bones. But miracle dice in Georgia are like red ants on a picnic pie. Georgia is four layers deep in trick ivories. Use 'em in theatre for fresco tiling.

Smoke is down home going through the motions of earning a living. He's there yet.

IF you get down in Georgia and pipe a dinge hopping up and down like a Mexican jumping bean doing the shimmy, you'll know that's the bird. Just throw a dime and down all day like a barefooted Greek dancer in a briar patch.

He's got a million Turkish dollars in his head.

And he's trying to shake one down into his pocket so that he can have a meal.

DEMPSEY SIGNS AND RESUMES STAGE TOUR

Dempsey was satisfied with everything, especially with the promised $27,500 for his part in the bout.

Willard is to get $100,000 and one-third of the picture privileges. The articles call for a bout not to exceed forty rounds.

The preliminaries were ironed out gracefully earlier in the afternoon at the Claridge Hotel here, where Dempsey accepted everything offered in the oral agreement between Tex Rickard and Jack Kearns, his manager. Then the adjournment was taken to New Jersey.

Dempsey said that only Kearns is authorized to do business for him. Immediately after he had put his signature to the papers Jack left for Uniontown, Pa., where he starts a six-weeks' theatrical tour.

It was announced Rickard will go to Texas Friday.

BIG LEAGUE BOUTS FOR MARLBORO CLUB

Matchmaker Jack Leonard has fixed up a regular big league card of bouts for the Marlboro Driving Club show next Friday night and arrangements have been made to handle a record-breaking attendance. In the opening bout of six rounds Jack McGuinness of Lynn meets Chuck Brock of Westboro, while Jack Wilder battles Arthur Ross in a second six-rounder.

The semi-final is eight rounds, and brings together Johnny Marto and Jim McKenna of Putnam. M'Kenna holds the only knye registered against Marto, and the latter is out to square matters in the return. George Robinson clashes with Jack Blackburn of Philadelphia over the ten-round route.

RHODE ISLAND HOPES TO PASS SUNDAY BALL BILL

Providence, Feb. 11.—Will the State Senate "black-jack" the Sunday baseball bill, which it is believed will pass the House, is the big question in baseball circles. The measure is before the House Judiciary Committee, and it is said five of the seven members favor its passage.

Majority members of the Senate refuse to discuss the question. It is believed at the State House the measure will pass if the leaders issue the word to "let 'er go."

G. W. Dill, a Hyde Park boy, wants to sign with some speedy theater Hoss-Flinger for the coming season. He is a catcher and claims he's a sweet sticker with it. Dill's address is No. 24 Dell avenue, Hyde Park.

CORBETT'S COLUMN

The cry of Fulton that he was double-crossed in his fight with Jack Dempsey apparently has sounded the pugilistic death knell for the angular plasterer.

Fulton's statement has been termed an absolute untruth by the man who managed him in that fight and by the man who whipped him. Since Fulton's surprising declaration came out of San Francisco not one supporting word has come. And there have been reams upon reams printed which would indicate that there was no frameup; that Fulton was whipped fairly and squarely.

But whether the Fulton statement is truth or untruth, it can mean but one thing—he is dead pugilistically.

Patrons of fight clubs want to see real honest fights—not frameups. And if Fulton agreed to one "frame," as he insists he did, then isn't it logical to suppose that he might do it again?

BOOB PLAY BY FULTON.

Fulton has been described by some who know him intimately as a "boob;" by others as a man lacking in mature judgment while others class him as nothing but an overgrown boy.

And each of those factions claim that Fulton's foolish action in declaring he was a party to a frameup in which he got nothing but the double-cross—a left to the body and right to the jaw—bears them out.

Just how Fulton ever hit upon the idea that by saying he was double-crossed in an alleged frameup he would get a chance for a return match is hard to figure out—unless you concede that Fulton is in the boob class.

If he had any reasonable power at all he would have decided—in case there actually was a frame-up—that the better plan was continued silence.

Then he might have been reasonably certain of getting another match with Dempsey because Dempsey having whipped Fulton with two wallops, wouldn't have much hesitation in giving a frameup.

But as it is, Fulton's statement has done nothing else but make him a self-confessed liar in the eyes of some—and a mangler of truth in the eyes of others.

Since he was among the greatest drawing cards in pugilism.

Now he is an undesirable citizen as far as the fight game is concerned.

HARD BLOW TO BOXING.

Indirectly while putting himself in an unenviable position, Fulton has handed a wicked looking black eye to pugilism.

His challenge statement, coming just at a time when a revival of pugilism was under way in many States, may have the effect of kicking much of the "revive" out of it.

Enemies of the boxing game—and they are legion—have been only awaiting such a chance as the Fulton statement has given them to renew their assault on the boxing game.

And legislators might be so influenced by the knocks that they may delay action on bills in some of the States—and kill them entirely in others.

It's too bad for Fred Fulton and the boxing game in general that he ever was prevailed upon to make the statement that he did.

Maybe he made it of his own free will—and maybe not. If he didn't—if some so-called friend told him to "go to it"—then Fulton ought to "reward" that friend by dealing out to him an unceasing succession of his famous left jabs.

BASEBALL NEWS AND GOSSIP

Hugh Canavan, rookie southpaw, who has just been discharged from active service in the navy, and Joe Diggert, St. Paul outfielder, have signed their Brave contracts. Manager Stallings believes that Canavan stands a good chance of going over big in the big show. He started the '18 race with the Braves, but turned tar before getting in many games.

* * *

Biggert has long been rated one of the fastest base-runners in the American Association. Last season he bombarded to the tune of .325. Joe is a very good ground-coverer in the meadows and possesses a good throwing wing.

* * *

Happy Felsch has signed with the White Sox. That settles all chances the Red Sox had of getting him, though out Chicago way the sharps have the idea that Pirate G. Barrow never had a chance of annexing the wiggling centre fielder. Little Nemo Lushold has also come to terms with Charley Comiskey.

* * *

Two members of the Yankees have also swung into line. They are Pitcher Jones, who will be one of Duffy Lewis' garden mates the coming season, and Hal Ruel, crack young catcher. This St. Louis boy is one of the best catching prospects in baseball, and Manager Huggins is confident he will be able to fill Al Walters' shoes.

* * *

Johnny McGraw has passed Dick Hendrawy, his kid third-sacker, to Indianapolis.

* * *

Garry Herrmann has told Johnny McGraw that Hal Chase must drop his suit against the Reds before he will give the New York skipper permission to dicker for him. The suit is for back pay, some $2,000.

* * *

Chicago comes first with its Gowdy Day. It's carded for June 8. If possible, Grover Alexander, another regular fellow, will do the pitching for the Cubs.

* * *

Rollie Zeider and Bert Niehoff are two National Leaguers slated to become American Association pilots. Joe Tinker wants Zeider to handle his Columbus club, while Louisville is angling for Niehoff to become General Manager Neal's chief aide.

* * *

Spider Baum, veteran San Francisco pitcher, is the inventor of the "fly" ball. Here's his description of the style of ball he pitches: "I mask its delivery and if a batter ever gets hit with it he'll go to the hospital, sure."

NEW YORK GETS HARVARD TIES IN BIG SERIES

Harvard's baseball schedule for 1919 is out. Nineteen games have been definitely arranged, with five tentatively booked. One is a date with the Braves at the Wigwam April 21.

Home contests are booked with Brown, Holy Cross and Pennsylvania, while the customary series with Yale and Princeton are clinched.

However, Harvard rooters will be sorry to hear that if deciding games with the Tigers and Elis are necessary, they will be played in New York.

Boston College gets June 14 on Soldiers' Field and if no third game is played with Princeton, Harvard will go to University Heights June 16.

Hugh Duffy's squad embraces nineteen members. Plans were discussed for the coming season at a rousing meeting held in the Trophy Room, Harvard Union.

"The purpose of the season," said Coach Duffy, is to whip Yale. It looks as if we have the right material, so it's up to you fellows." The dates:

April 9, Bowdoin, at Cambridge; April 12, Bates, at Cambridge; April 16, Springfield Y. M. C. A., at Cambridge; April 19, Penn, at Cambridge (tentative); April 21, Boston Braves, at Braves Field (tentative); April 26, Colby, at Cambridge; April 30, Vermont, at Cambridge.

May 1, Maine, at Cambridge; May 3, Penn., at Philadelphia; May 7, Holy Cross, at Cambridge; May 10, Dartmouth, at Cambridge; May 14, Williams, at Cambridge; May 17, Princeton (place undecided); May 21, Amherst, at Cambridge; May 24, Princeton (place undecided); May 30, Brown, at Providence; May 31, Brown, at Cambridge.

June 4, open; June 7, Holy Cross, at Worcester; June 10, Boston College, at Newton (in case no third game with Princeton); June 11, Fordham, at N. Y. The Belle of New York

AN ABSORBING NEW MOTION SERIAL

Marion Davies Is Featured as the Beautiful Violet Gray in This Story of Love and Machinery in the Middle West

By Jane McLean

THE Bronson works were the biggest of their kind in the country and Bronson was a man to whom it was unwise to be under obligation.

Perhaps if his wife had lived he might have had other interests but she died when his son was scarcely seven and thenceforth the man became more and more absorbed in business.

As Jack grew older and gave every promise of being an individual of force and power like his father, the elder Bronson discovered that, after all, the boy was the real kernel of his heart. The money, the power he had won, came second, they were good only as they could be passed on to the son.

And Jack had now reached the age when his forming education was at an end. He had graduated from college, he had tripped it about the world and he was now about to spend a few weeks in New York to round out his fling at boyhood before taking up the serious duties of manhood.

His father was not squeamish—nor mealy-mouthed about it. He called a spade a spade.

Jack dropped in as he sat absorbed in his plans for the exploitation of the new invention. He had moved the table under the big centre light to study more in detail what plans Gray had made, and he looked up a bit impatiently as his son entered.

"Hello, boy! Well, how are things going?"

"O. K. But what's all this?"

He walked to the table and glanced with some interest at the plans.

"That, my boy, is one of the greatest inventions of the day—and when you get back from New York I shall have it under way, and pretty soon it'll be paying us a million a year or more—"

"And who's the lucky dog who did it?" asked the son, lighting a cigar and sinking into one of the big leather chairs.

"An old fellow named Gray—and the fool doesn't know its value—that is its real value. He's going to bring me the blue prints tomorrow and he hasn't got the thing patented—but it's attended to that, Jack, my boy—I'll attend to that."

He said this in such a triumphant tone that Jack gazed at him somewhat surprised.

"You don't mean the old chap isn't going to get anything out of it, do you?"

"Oh, he'll get something out of it, boy, something—all he deserves; he'll get a chance to develop it for six months or so in our laboratories, and I'll see that he doesn't starve; he's sixty if he's a day, and what's he want at his age?"

To the elder man's surprise, Jack remained silent. "Well, what's the matter?" his father demanded in a half jeer. "Do you think I'm running a school for philanthropists, eh—"

"No, I don't," answered the son calmly. "I should say, after what you've just said, that you're running a school for Pagins."

"Now what in—— do you mean?" cried Bronson, rising from his chair and standing over Jack.

"Calm down, dad. You know what I mean. I don't like to see you doing business in this way. It's a bad way. It doesn't pay in the end, and the time's coming when it won't pay in the beginning——"

"Oh, I suppose you'd make him a present of the works and then hand him the money for the invention on a gold platter and then ask him if you could have a dollar a day working for him. But, by Gad, sir, that soft stuff doesn't go with me. No, sir. I split them every time, and every time I miss doing it they're going to skin me if they can."

"You say this old chap hasn't got his patents and yet you intimate he's trying to skin you."

"See here, that's enough! I'll do what I want to do, and I don't want any advice from you—when you've earned as much as I have you can talk turkey to me."

"I just want you to know I don't like your way of doing business, Dad. You're too big a man to descend to it. I've said my piece and now I'll say good night. See you tomorrow in the office. I'm leaving tomorrow night."

Jack's protest left Mr. Bronson cold. He resumed his study of the plans and all it was fair into the night before he went to follow his son to sleep.

Harding Spoke

Events moved swiftly in the lives of the two families that were to be linked so closely together, but were now unknown to each other except through the casual acquaintance of the inventor and the capitalist.

Mr. Bronson took care to have Harding present when Mr. Gray called with the perfected plans for the transformer the following morning. The timid little man was ushered into the private office of the head of the Bronson works with a heart beating high with faith and hope.

Bronson did not look up. It was Harding who spoke. "Oh, here is Mr. Gray."

"Gray, Gray," muttered Bronson as though he scarcely remembered the inventor, "about who—oh, yes—sit down Mr. Gray, and you have the prints with you I see."

The visitor pulled a chair close to the desk and laying his hat on the floor began to go into detail with the heavy-browed man.

It was a study to Harding to watch the old man as he proceeded with the story of his life-work. It was plain that he had put into the transformer the results of years of patient experiment and toil, that it represented the culmination of unremitting effort to work out an idea that had so far baffled the best minds in the electrical field.

But William Bronson, squarejawed, keen-eyed, saw only that this timid old inventor had solved a problem that would make the name of Bronson more powerful—and fill the pockets of Bronson with more millions.

He waited patiently while the older man went on with his details, and finally, when he had explained them all and lifted his kindly face, flushed with the triumph of success, he made no sign of approval.

When he did speak his voice had a coarse, rasping note, as though it were betraying the thought that prompted his words.

"And the patents—you say the patents have never been taken out?"

"Oh, no. I leave all that to you, Mr. Bronson."

"Yes, of course. Well, Mr. Gray, I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll give you the use of our laboratories here to finish whatever needs to be done. I'll pay you $1,000 a month and I'll see to the patents——"

"Most generous," murmured the old man. "I can trust you to do what's right, Mr. Bronson. I'll leave the prints here and report to work tomorrow."

First Check

"Good," said Bronson. "Suppose I give you your first check in advance." He walked to Harding, who came forward while his employer wrote out the check.

"I want to thank you, too," said the simple old man. "I know I'm in safe hands, I can see that." Harding tried hard to smile. He was spared the necessity of replying to Bronson, who rose and handed the check to the inventor.

The latter shook hands with his benefactor, and Bronson walked to the door and saw him out. In a few minutes he was back, alert, full of plans. "Harding, push this through quick—everything else can wait—get this stuff systematized and the application in."

The lawyer nodded. "What's his game?" he asked. Bronson looked up. "What is the devil's that to you? You want the patent made out to John Doe?" asked Harding.

"Look here, Harding, are you crazy? I want it made out to William Bronson—to me, and we'll make some arrangement with Gray afterward."

"But how about Gray?" ventured Harding.

"He'll get all that's coming to him," roared Bronson. "Now get busy—send a check to Washington with the papers—do it anyway—get me—the fool might change his mind—and you were a witness, Harding—I didn't promise anything but the thousand a month—and I'll be through with him in a month."

The lawyer had worked with the head of the big plant before and he inwardly calculated that $1,000 was every cent the inventor would ever get for his labors of forty years, this Aladdin's lamp so trustingly placed in the hands of William Bronson.

Late that afternoon the millionaire's son dropped in at his father's office as he had promised. The elder Bronson was in high good humor. Harding had mailed the patent application and barring unforseen obstacles the patent was as good as granted.

"Well, dad, I'm off, but as I have remarked before, traveling is expensive."

Elder Grunted

The elder man grunted. This son of his, the only tie of flesh and blood he had, looked in all ways worthy of carrying on with him the great concern he had built up.

"Jack," he said, "I'm no niggard with you. I'm giving you a check for $25,000—go to it—but whatever you do, don't forget you're a man. There's only one thing I never could stand—to hear that you'd been hooked by some brainless piece of fluff. Here, take this check and don't forget—be a man."

"All right, dad; now you're turned on the current I'll make the sparks fly. Take care of yourself." "And when you come back," continued his father, without a smile, "you can start in at the bottom of the works and learn the business."

MORE than three months went by before I met her again, though I knew she and her husband had had audience of Her Majesty several times.

The occasion was at a court ball at Tsarskoe-Selo when, just as I was ready to go into the hall, Rasputin, with his big cross on his breast, entered me, and one of the valets announced the lady in question. Next moment she came in fussily, introducing her husband, a tall, broad-shouldered, good-looking man in uniform, who bowed low over my hand.

"The Empress told me that I should come straight to you," said the yellow-haired woman. "She wishes to speak with me privately tonight."

I hesitated. The mystery of the Oranovski matter was still increasing. I recall the scene at Livadia in the Summer days three months before.

It was at present that Alexandra Feodorovna had arranged with her to see me, and give me her message. Therefore I could only obey. Well did I know the erratic life led by the Empress, with all her strange "attractions," from mental seances to actual privy councillors, those spiritualistic seances, and her full and entire belief in any charlatan who might turn his eyes heavenward and utter prophetic words.

The star of Stalla and his imperial spouse in those days of peace and plenty were open to believe in any fortune-teller, or clairvoyante, those gypsies who wander over the great steppes from the Caspian to Moscow.

Before the throne I made my bow, when the Empress whispered in English:

"I wish to see Colonel Oranovski. I shall be at 1 o'clock in the orange house. I will see him there."

I bowed again in acknowledgment of the message, and then passed forward.

I told the good-looking colonel of Her Majesty's desire to see him, and took him to the spot where he should wait at the appointed time, —a spot where Her Majesty had often met people by appointment through me, but others as though casually.

At 1 o'clock I passed the spot upon the arm of young Prince Odalesckl, First Secretary of the Italian Embassy, in order to see that the colonel was there. At once I took in the situation. Beneath one of the giant trees wherein hung golden ball of the Sixth the gallant colonel from Warsaw was being wooed by Her Majesty. They had, I knew, met before.

On her part the Empress was gracious. I saw her putting him at his ease, and ere I passed they were chatting, while at the same moment Madame Vyrubova, who had approached, was introduced.

This struck me as curious. If Madame Oranovski was a friend of Anna, then surely she would know her husband. Apparently this was not so. The little point still mystified me as I passed in upon the arm of my Italian diplomat, while a few minutes later we were waltzing together in the huge ballroom, filled by its brilliant crowd.

To describe the glittering gaiety of that night is unnecessary. The scene was probably one of the gayest in all Europe, the men in court uniforms stiff with gold lace, and the women in the latest "creations" of the mad-dressmakers of the Palace Vendome. In our feathers and trains we put on a splendid show, as we always do, and every woman who had a decoration wore it in her corsage that night.

Until 3 o'clock I remained in the ballroom. Once I danced with the German Count Fredericks, and later on took part in a set of quadrilles with the merry, easygoing, Grand Duke Nicholas, the great patriot of our empire.

His Imperial Highness was ever courteous towards me, and, being much older than myself, always addressed me as his "little niece."

It was this same Grand Duke who afterwards, in 1916, went to the Czar, and, after openly warning him that war was to come, urged him to stand firm in the fight against the Teuton. What resulted you well know. The Emperor wilts at the front did all in his power to infuse patriotism into his troops, and even led the life of the humblest soldier, but as soon as he returned to us at Tsarskoe-Selo he fell beneath the subtle and evil influence of his Imperial spouse and the intriguing sycophants about her.

Little did we anticipate the war with Germany. Nicholas hated the Emperor William, and at table often sneered at the tinselled, theatrical display of the "Great War Lord." Yet none dreamed of the Kaiser's secret, subterranean campaign for the undermining of our dear Russian Empire.

Colonel Oranovski came to the palace many times in the days that followed. I noted, however, that his visits were soon back to Warsaw. Demidoff, who was a terrible gossip and one of the most dandified men at court, whispered to me one day that Oranovski had quarreled with his wife.

"As a matter of fact," he said confidentially, "Oranovski has not exactly quarrelled with his wife, but the Empress has snubbed her very severely, and for some unaccountable reason has sent her back home, while she still entertains our friend the elegant colonel. Now, Mademoiselle Xenia—" he added, "what do you make of it all?"

"It is mysterious," I replied.

"Very. Her Majesty is no doubt interested in the colonel, but not in his wife. And yet the latter is a sister disciple of the abominable Starets!"

Part XII.

I WATCHED events as they progressed. I need not go into details of these, but of a sudden I realized a most disgraceful and dastardly plot—a conspiracy conceived in the Empress' subtle brain. Lieutenant Vyrubova, of the Imperial Russian Navy, a fine specimen of an officer, whose life was as straight as a die, had been marked out by Alexandra Feodorovna, who for some most mysterious reason bitterly disliked him. But when a splendid young officer incurs the displeasure of an Empress, than all is finished, and there can be no recreat.

A week later, while we were at the Alexandra Palace at Peterhof, I was walking one day in the garden, when Lieutenant Vyrubova, fine, tall, well built, and smart in his naval uniform, came out upon the broad gravelled terrace, and, joining me, clicked his heels, exclaiming:

"Mademoiselle, I have long desired to speak with you alone. First, I want to thank you very much for your extreme kindness to my dear Anna. You are Her Majesty's friend and confidante, and therefore you know the great love I bear for my wife, and the somewhat romantic circumstances of our marriage, by which—well, to tell the truth, I fear I have incured the displeasure of the Empress."

What he said was perfectly true. His gray, wideopen eyes met mine. He was one of those intense upright men of whom there are today so very few, but who, when found by any woman of any class, make real, true husbands. My own dear husband, Trankoff, whose memory I revere, was of that same type.

What could I say? While this wife—through the sinister, diabolical influence of the Starets, of which he was, of course, kept in ignorance —was the close friend of Alexandra Feodorovna, yet Her Majesty detested him, and had to me refused to receive him.

For appearances' sake, and in accordance with court etiquette, he was allowed to visit his wife. But the Czarina made it quite plain to all that she disapproved of his presence.

I reassured him by declaring that Her Majesty had always spoken of him kindly.

"The Empress took a great fancy to Mademoiselle Anna before her marriage," I said. "Perhaps now she resents slightly the fact that she has become attached to you in a somewhat greater degree than to herself. As you known, my dear Lieutenant," I added as we walked together down towards the wonderful fountains, "we women are strange creatures, all of us. You men seldom understand us."

"No, mademoiselle," he laughed lightly. "I am only a plain sailor, and am ignorant of the intrigues of courts. All I know is that I love my Anna very devotedly. Only the day before yesterday I got leave from Riga, and came here at once. Yet—" and he hesitated.

Receipt to Make a Gray Hair Remedy

A. L. Paulson, M. D., who has practiced medicine in New York City for many years, gave out the following recipe for a home-made gray hair remedy: "Gray, streaked or faded hair can be immediately turned black, brown or light brown, whichever shade you desire, by the following simple remedy that you can make at home:

"Merely get a box of Orlex powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extras to buy. Dissolve it in 4 oz. of distilled or rain water and comb it through the hair. Directions for mixing and use and a gold bond guarantee come in each box.

"It is safe, it does not rub off, is not sticky or greasy, and leaves the hair fluffy. It will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger."

How Any Woman Can Remove Hairy Growths

(Beauty Culture)

It is not longer necessary for a woman to visit a beauty specialist to have superfluous hairs removed, for, with the aid of a plain delatone (such as can be had of any druggist) of her own home, remove even a stubborn growth in a very few minutes. The paste is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. This is applied to the hairs and after 3 or 4 minutes removed and the skin washed, when it will be left clear and hairless. Be sure you buy real delatone.—Advertisement.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and easy to make, but it really has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for 2½ ounces of Pinex with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Advertisement.

OIL STOCKS UP IN NEW YORK MARKET

American Can, After Touching Low for the Year, Jumps Two Points to 45

Good gains were made in the oil stocks today on the New York market. This was also true of the industrial group.

American can, after touching 42½, its low for the year, was up nearly two points to 45. American Hide and Leather issues were strong and active around noontime.

American Steel Foundries was up three points to 74, which is the best it went to its highest for the day shortly afternoon when the interest in the American Can and Federal issues broke up.

Mexican Petroleum and the other oils recorded from 1 point to a point. Tobacco Products continued weak, showing a loss of a point and a half. Sumatra and United Cigar Stores lost fractionally higher.

Rails were quiet but firm. Copper was irregular.

In Boston, United Fruit and Utility banks showed the largest gains. Shannon Copper Company sold down to 2¾, the lowest for the year.

The gains at 2 points were: Steel, ¾ to 93¾; American Woolen, 2 to 74; Foundries, 1¾ at 87½; Smelting, 1¾ at 78¾, and Utility, Steel Corporation, 1¾ at 84½; Mexican Petroleum, 1¾ at 168½; Texas Company, 1¾ at 168½; Royal Dutch, 1 at 87½; Reading, 1 at 78¾ and Southern Pacific, 1 at 97.

The declines were also fractional. Tobacco, 1¾ at 57¾; Kennecott, 1¾ at 25¾; Utah Copper, 1¾ at 81¾; General Motors, ¾ at 130¾, and Cuba Cane Sugar, ¾ at 22¾.

In Boston the Rails were: Pittsburg, 1¾ at 34; Maine, 1¾ at 19½; United Shoe, ¾ at 49½; Pere Marquette, ¾ at 21½; Boston & Maine, ¾ at 67½, and Old Colony, ¾ at 67½.

The losses were slight.

After yesterday's bullish optimism in the Wall street district was almost evenly divided, with the speculative element generally maintaining a position on the near side and ready for declines if such should come. Offers have been noticed with augmented pressure.

A most noticed investing movement during the past week, on hand on served in Maritime, Petroleum and some copper issues. The trading has been heavy, by professional speculators it was thought that a set-back would raise the demand that came from the traders who have been committed to the public.

The report of the American Can Company issued today showed net profits amounting to $17,057,625 compared with $21,995,027 for the year ending December 31, 1918.

The following after depreciation, interest, Federal taxes and preferred dividend on the preferred was $9,114,196, equivalent to $7.35 on the common shares. There are no bonded issues in the company, which company with bonds, notes and

The balance sheet as of December 31 last shows cash, $7,586,430; bills and accounts receivable $12,317,587; against $19,810,687, surplus $19,556,519 against $23,206,108 and total liabilities of $144,864,502 against $125,143,125 in 1917.

BROKERS' REQUIREMENTS.

In the limelight during the trading yesterday the money situation was forced into attention by requirements of the stock exchange houses were the usual nature of the day's business.

Urgent requests were sent out to have this demand supplied and the old time money post which although technically out of existence still can be reached, furnished enough funds to satisfy all needs providing full accommodation for everyone on the floor at 6 per cent.

Although it was understood that all the various interests in American Hide & Leather Preferred had been suggested on Saturday those who are fully informed about affairs of the company say that the formal announcement of any plan for the settlement of the tangle will be made well in the trade now or in the near future. The company is in a strong position with $14,000,000 of assets and $3,000,000 cash on hand and has arranged to have the outstanding bonds out of its cash.

LITTLE LIQUIDATION.

It seems that liquidation of consequence is conspicuously absent from the security markets, notwithstanding dividend reductions, increased taxes, strikes and all the other allotments that have been filling the financial and industrial world with pessimism.

Steel common, notwithstanding its dividend has not been touched been reduced, is selling only a few points below the low levels of the year. The last cut to a 4 to basis has failed to produce a break at all parallel, for instance, to that which followed the reduction in American Smelting's rate.

In the unfilled tonnage statement for the end of January of the Steel Corporation the fact that for the last depressing influence upon the common stocks of the Steel Corporation and the market in general, barring, of course, fundamental developments—may be found in the fact there is to be a turn in the industrial tide it must come soon as Spring is the time of year when trade normally picks up, is near at hand. Though the total tonnage of January is but nearly 5,000,000 tons less than at the corresponding time a year ago early enough the first month of the response was an advance in steel shares.

MARCH, JULY AND OCTOBER FEATURE COTTON BUYING

New York, Feb. 11.—Buying of March, July and October by Liverpool and Japanese interests featured the opening of the cotton market today. The stronger values were chiefly responsible for the initial quotations being unchanged to 18 points net higher. The close was steady. The trade was soon supplied by Wall Street and Southern selling and prices dropped about forty points from the high levels of the call. About noon, however, the market turned strong again on trade and Liverpool buying and local covering and quotations moved up to a net advance of about fifty points.

Opening prices were: March 21.75, May 20.60, July 20.25, October 19.15.

STEEL ORDERS FEW DESPITE PRODUCTION

Mills Running On Old Orders, Are Adding to Their Stocks

It is stated that the present scale of operations by mills gives an entirely erroneous impression of the condition of the steel industry, as many plants are working upon old orders which will soon be finished. At Pittsburgh, it is said that the United States Steel Corporation is working at from 85 per cent. to 90 per cent. capacity, but in many lines between 50 per cent. and 60 per cent. of the present output is going into stock, and storage facilities will be taxed if the mills should continue long. The steel corporation is trying to keep many of its employes at work as is possible.

In general independent steel concerns are operating at 60 per cent. to 70 per cent. capacity, with the average estimated at about 65 per cent. As there are no bids at lower prices than are asked, pig iron and steel producers are confident that as soon new business is cutting in prices. They are expected in the trade to go down, however.

There has been a great falling off in steel production since the armistice was signed, and January last the rate of iron production was almost 3,000,000 tons unfavorably with an actual output of about 38,000,000 tons in 1918, 39,647,000 in 1917 and 39,434,000 in 1916.

Steel ingot production in January last, however, was the largest on record, exceeding that of October, 1918, in October production was 3,252,184 tons. In December 2,962,316 and in January this year 3,058,427, according to American Iron and Steel Institute figures.

Regarding the report of the United States Steel Corporation as to unfilled orders at the end of last month, it is said in both financial and industrial circles that the showing was as good as could be looked for, and that the decrease in tonnage indicated the entering into operation of lines of trade requiring steel.

Bolshevism Must Be Eradicated at Root by Eliminating Creative Cause, Says Mr. Hearst

Bolshevism Gaining in This Country

By Senator Reed

February 6, 1919.

Hon. Wm. R. Hearst,
Clarendon Apartments,
New York City, N. Y.

My Dear Mr. Hearst:

I write this letter with much hesitation. I realize that if I were to assume to advise you, my conduct would smack of insolence. Nevertheless, when men acquire great prominence and power they become in a sense charged with a kind of public trust which, in a way, entitles everybody to declare an interest in them and in their welfare.

Perhaps this right may, in my case, be strengthened by that friendship and genuine respect in which I hold you. I therefore am asking that you permit me to impose certain ideas which have for a considerable time been running through my mind.

War invariably brings quite as violent upheavals in the intellectual as in the physical world. It is a time when extremists are able to gain audiences and when the populace are easily persuaded to follow pleasing chimeras. Frequently these movements are imagined by their authors to be in the nature of great reforms. Yet it often happens that they are inspired by or lead directly to anarchy.

Such a period as I have described occurred at the close of the Napoleonic Wars. It was to a degree repeated at the end of the Crimean Wars. To a considerable extent it was manifested in the years succeeding the late Civil War.

Even More Serious Condition Looms

Just now the condition I have referred to looms before us in a degree as much greater than it has been previously manifested as the present conflict is greater than those which have gone before.

I can see rapidly shaping in this continent, as well as in the Eastern world, a movement, the basic principle of which means the destruction of both property and personal rights.

It involves the enthronement of one class over all other people. This class loves to call itself the proletariat—the workman—the Socialist, etc. But under whatsoever name it operates it seeks to establish its supremacy by crushing the rights of all other classes.

This so-called reform movement merely substitutes the denunciations which were once hurled at titled rulers for a general denunciation of the bourgeois. That is to say, where they once damned holders of titles they now damn everybody who happens to have accumulated a little property.

Every day is bringing us more conclusive proof of the fact that what we generally describe as Bolshevism, and in the past we referred to as I. W. W.ism, is, in fact, gaining very considerable headway in the United States. I respectfully submit that there is a half-expressed, almost inarticulate, feeling of unrest throughout our country.

Time for Great Care

It is therefore a time when great care must be observed. Just now it is specially dangerous to throw matches into the dry grass. The winds are blowing too high. The times are too favorable for a conflagration. Should something in the nature of a panic or stringency occur and the pinch become severe, it is quite possible the soap-box orator under a red flag may become first the leader of a mob, then of a movement, and speedily the dictator of the republic.

These observations are but preliminary to what I want to suggest, which is, to my conception, a very high service which you can render to the people of the United States. Your power to confer this benefit is perhaps not equalled by that of any other man.

It is my opinion that unless something intervenes to arrest the movement I am discussing, our people are very likely to divide into two classes. (1)—The excited crowd led by agitators crying out for the confiscation of property and personal rights. In short, an American Bolshevism, dangerous alike to the State and the citizen.

(2)—There will undoubtedly be a reactionary element, powerfully backed with money, influence and talent. This element will very likely refuse to see any wrong whatsoever in any present condition. At the same time it will be blind to any modicum of right in the cause its opponents advocate.

Is this not a time for high and patriotic service? Is it not the hour for men of thought and influence to point the path of safety and duty to the American people?

Is it not the time for the leaders of thought in their forcible language to warn the people against the dangers of extremes?

I am writing this letter in the hope that you may see as I do, and if so, that you may be induced to employ not only your own great personal talent, but that of your remarkable corps of writers, to make the Hearst press the leader in a fight for the creation and preservation of a higher and better Americanism.

With assurances of my sincere respect,

JAMES A. REED.

DROP IN COST OF LIVING

By Senator John W. Weeks

To the American:

While financial and labor conditions in the United States are in better state than they seem to be abroad, that is, if we can credit the information coming from the other side, yet they are serious enough to disturb every lover of his country.

The real facts are that the cost of living has commenced to decrease; and, with the abundant crops we have and the harvest we anticipate, based on acreage, there is no doubt about a material reduction in the cost of living in the early future.

When industrial conditions reach the state they are now approaching, it encourages every man of Bolshevik tendencies, every idler, and every man who does not feel the responsibility of earning an honest living to add to the agitation for the purpose of promoting his own personal interests.

In co-operating with your admirable effort to discourage lawlessness and violence, I cannot too strongly urge the desirability that those who control both elements in our population—honest capital and honest labor—shall keep their feet on the ground, be moderate in their demands and policies, consult together freely in their efforts to obtain a condition which will be for the best interests of all concerned, and combine their interests in the fight against those who are evidently pledged to destroy our form of government and the peace to which we are justly entitled.

WORKERS ASSURED OF COMFORT

By Senator James Hamilton Lewis

To the American:

I am pleased that Mr. Hearst has volunteered to put his extensive publications at the service of the government and the people to assure tranquility among our citizens, and particularly to avoid lawlessness and disturbances in the relationships of capital and labor, employer and employe.

There is no such condition in America as in Russia. It is our mass of people who own the wealth of our land. It is our middle class who own the homes.

It is our laborer who lives as well as the aristocrats and official set living in other ages in other lands lived.

February, 8, 1919.

Hon. James A. Reed,
United States Senate,
Washington, D. C.

My Dear Senator Reed:

I am exceedingly glad to receive your fine letter and also the messages from other Senators whom I hold in high esteem.

I know of no more important work in the country than to prevent progressivism, radicalism, or whatever we may call the progress of popular ideals, from taking that extreme form which would tend to discredit those ideals with the more temperate people in the community.

Nor surely is anything more essential to the welfare of the nation than to prevent the mass of the people, which constitute the vast majority of the citizenship, from coming to believe that the remedy for their political and social ills lies in violence and disorder.

I am inexpressibly glad, therefore, to see that Congress and certain members of the Administration are aroused to a realization of the danger of excessive radicalism in this country.

I have been fully alive to this situation for a long time and have written a great many editorials on the question, which, naturally, the gentlemen who write me urging me to take an interest in the matter have not had time to read.

I simply state the fact that I have written these editorials, which editorials I would be glad to send you, to show that I do not need to be urged to take an interest in so vital a matter.

And while I am eager to do all I can in support of the activities of the Senate Committee, I must frankly say that without corrective legislation neither I nor any other editor can any more quell Bolshevism than we could stop a prairie fire with a bucket of water.

I would like respectfully to suggest that Congress and the Administration should use their great powers to obviate or eliminate THE CONDITIONS WHICH CREATE BOLSHEVISM.

Most certainly will I give my best efforts to support their wise and patriotic action.

This is obviously no time "to throw matches into the dried grass." Still less is it a time to allow the grass of popular sentiment to become so dry and parched, so inflammable with arid discontent, that any spark from any source may bring about an all-involving conflagration.

I very sincerely believe that only by eliminating the creative cause can Bolshevism be destroyed.

And in order that we may proceed with our object as immediately and as effectively as possible, let us analyze the situation and determine as clearly as possble what Bolshevism is, what it expresses, and of what it is the outgrowth.

It is very clear in my mind that what we call Bolshevism is merely the extreme of violent radicalism, which is the result of reactionary conditions equally extreme and equally indefensible: that it is merely the violent and inflamed protest of the masses against the selfishness, arbitrariness, injustice and corruption of the classes.

Surely that is what it is in Russia, and as far as Bolshevism exists in America, that is what it is in America.

Bolshevism in Russia is obviously and admittedly the revolt of violence against the brutally selfish and criminally corrupt autocracy that controlled the government in Russia and misused it to plunder and oppress the people, and as always happens under such circumstances, the reaction is from one extreme to the other, from an extreme of restriction and oppression to an extreme of lawlessness and license, from an extreme in which the privileged classes had everything to an extreme in which a resentful populace is willing to grant them nothing, not even their individual liberties and lives.

Of course, we have no such extremes of autocracy in America, and we have no such extremes of Bolshevism. Yet we have a certain development of lawless and violent radicalism in America, and that is surely the result of a certain lawlessness and violence and brutal disregard for the rights of others which characterize the only autocracy we have in this country—the autocracy of wealth and privilege.

I assure you, my dear Senator, that I have been trying for twenty years to prevent the development of lawless and violent radicalism in the only way in which it can be prevented, and that is by preventing the development of lawlessness and violence and brutal and stupid selfishness among our autocrats of great wealth—our "malefactors of great wealth," as Roosevelt has called them.

If you and I and the Senators in Washington and all who are patriotically concerned in the welfare of our country shall be able to stop the criminal corruption in politics, such as was evidenced in the recent mayoralty election in New York, when fifty-nine small culprits were sent to jail for falsifying the returns, while the powerful collectors and distributors of the $2,000,000 slush fund which excited these small criminals to ballot debauchery went free of punishment on technicalities; if we shall be able to stop the extortion of the profiteering classes, who not only plunder the helpless public but coerce and even cause the murder of those who will not co-operate in their nefarious schemes, as in the Ball case in New York, in which you have taken so patriotic an interest; if we shall be able to stop the class favoritism or the judicial quibbling which enables stockholders in great corporations like the Standard Oil Trust or Bethlehem Steel Corporation indefinitely to defer or wholly to evade their tax obligations by the issue of stock dividends which the courts have just declared to be free of income taxation; if we shall be able to stop the unjust privileges and the improper immunities and the downright criminalities of our autocracy of wealth; that will be a long and effective step towards satisfying and mollifying the public and stopping in its tracks the hideous menace of Bolshevism.

And if you and I and the Senators at Washington and patriotic and judicious citizens generally do not proceed promptly to stop these misdeeds on the part of our "malefactors of great wealth" we may see a more dangerous development of Bolshevism in this country than many of us at present are capable of conceiving.

If we are going to correct the effect we must eliminate the cause, and if we do not eliminate the creative cause in an orderly and lawful manner it may be eliminated in a disorderly and unlawful manner.

In this critical situation none are so stupidly shortsighted as the possessors of great wealth and undue privilege.

They are risking all that they have in the attempt, unwisely and improperly, to secure a little more, or the empty shadow of a little more.

They are like the dog in Aesop that lost his bone in his greed for the mere reflection of it.

Of course, there is no more honest, no more moral, no more patriotic, no more well-meaning individual in the whole world than the average property-holding citizen of the United States of America.

He and his fellows constitute the very backbone of the republic and are the stabilizing, equalizing influence in our democratic institutions.

But this worthy property-holding class, who have acquired their possessions legitimately through service rendered the community, will suffer equally with the privileged and profiteering classes should there ever be resentful resort on the part of the mass of the people to violence and disorder.

It would seem to me, therefore, that the aid of this great, legitimate property-holding class, this great body of honest, judicious, patriotic, law-abiding, law-respecting citizens should be enlisted in this crusade against Bolshevism, and that their first step should be to convince these "malefactors of great wealth" that the honest citizenship of America will not stand for any more corruption in politics, injustice in the courts, acquisition of undue privileges, evasion of proper obligations, profiteering extortion and such misdeeds of money.

As long as the heedless and reckless privileged classes will not realize or respect this fact, and as long as the favored classes permit the comparatively small, corrupt element among them to continue their dishonest acts, the selfishness and dishonesty and lawlessness of these few will imperil the possessions of all.

For not only do these "malefactors of great wealth" imperil the possessions of their own selfish, cynical class, but they imperil the security and welfare of all other classes of the community which depend for their prosperity and safety on the general peace and order.

Bolshevism cannot be put down by editorials. Nor can it be suppressed by armies. It cannot be destroyed either by the inefficacy of words or the severity of force. Both have been tried, and both have failed.

Bolshevism must be eradicated at the root. It must be eliminated by eliminating the creative cause.

I certainly will do all I can to supplement the activities of the Senate committee, but I am of the firm opinion that it is not so much for the distinguished gentlemen in Washington to appeal to me as for me to appeal to them, for the reasons that I have stated: First, because I am fully aware of the dangers of the situation and have been discussing them for many years; second, because I cannot pass the legislation necessary to eliminate the creative cause of Bolshevism, and the gentlemen who represent the government, and are the government, can do so.

Let us all labor harmoniously to establish equal justice in this country, actual liberty, genuine democracy, universal opportunity; to compel the rich and the poor alike to pay the penalty of their misdeeds, and enable them alike to reap the full reward of their good deeds; let us labor to destroy utterly any basis for the belief that there is one law for the rich and another for the poor; that the conditions of social, economic and political life are somehow crystallizing more and more in the interest of the favored few and less and less in the interest of the mass of the people; to end the conviction, more or less justified, that even when a law is passed in the interest of the people it is nullified by the courts; that even when a measure is enacted placing upon the rich their due proportion of civic burdens and obligations, that measure is somehow evaded through the connivance of the judiciary.

Let us all sincerely strive to have it universally recognized as indisputable fact that wealth, like wages, is merely the return for service rendered; that the opportunity which one man honestly grasps is legitimately open to all; that no undue influence exists in government to control the passage of laws by the Legislatures or the construction of laws by the courts; that we have a democracy of merit and not an autocracy of wealth, and there will be no Bolshevism nor threat of Bolshevism in America and no demand for Bolshevism.

For in such case there will be no genuine or legitimate basis for popular dissatisfaction and discontent, or for any extreme or violent radicalism.

If such extreme radicalism or Bolshevism should then exist at all it will have no support whatever from the intelligent and judicious mass of the American people, without which no movement in this republic of ours can ever become formidable.

In other words, Bolshevism in this enlightened country can only be serious when backed by just and legitimate cause of popular complaint.

Deprived of that proper cause of complaint, Belshevism will be limited to the naturally lazy and the constitutionally lawless, and so small an element in our splendid population can never make itself felt as a menace to order or a danger to life and property, peace and safety.

Moderate progressive measures now will avoid the necessity for immoderate and excessive measures later.

And those who have the most to lose by lawlessness and disorder should be the first to help in the honest effort to promote the peaceful progressivism of law and order.

A few hard blows at the real root of the evil, and the rank growth of Bolshevism will be forever destroyed.

Faithfully yours,

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Senators Ask Hearst Papers to Quell Bolshevism

By John Temple Graves

On last Sunday night in Poli's Theatre at Washington there was held a meeting under the auspices of friends and sympathizers with the Bolshevik element of Russia which greatly stirred indignation and protest in the capital.

Senators, Congressmen, citizens and newspapers united in protest against such a meeting and against the speeches made there which indorsed Liebknecht and Rosa Luxembourg, and discredited the American government under the very shadow of the Capitol, and touching elbows with the White House.

The next day indignant speeches were made in the Senate by Senators King of Utah, Thomas of Colorado, Poindexter of Washington and many others, declaring the meeting in its spirit and expression was an outrage upon the government.

In the two days following a group of senators and a high official of the administration suggested to the representative of the New York American and the other Hearst newspapers that Mr. Hearst might do the country a signal service if he would use the great influence and circulation of his papers to rebuke and discourage the spirit and methods of Bolshevism, and move with all his great power of publicity for the conservation and co-ordination of the elements of our population upon terms of mutual helpfulness and good order in seeking the ends of happiness and prosperity to which they aspired under our free government.

New York, Feb. 8, 1919.

John Temple Graves,
New York American,
Washington, D. C.

Aid in every way you can the investigation of the Bolshevikl propaganda. I think the Senate Committee has undertaken a work of great and genuine value to the country.

In this investigation I hope will be deep and without prejudice and with the determined object of finding and suppressing the creative cause of the extreme radicalism of violence and lawlessness.

I will contribute all I can in the support of such a sincere program.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Immediately on receipt of this telegram the representative of the Hearst newspapers had an expression of the prompt co-operation of many senators in the creation of a wholesome public opinion upon our social problems.

FLAG OF FREE MUST BE UPHELD

By Senator William H. King

To the American:

I greatly rejoice in the co-operative leadership of the Hearst newspapers in the conservation of order and co-operation among the seemingly antagonistic forces of society.

The Constitution of this great democratic nation, and the flag which is the symbol of a free people, must be upheld in this hour when governments are in ruins and human institutions strew the earth.

While Europe is distracted with woe and sorrow as the result of the war, and the people are clamoring for peace and work and liberty, the hideous menace of Bolshevism threatens their aspirations and its bloody and menacing hand grips at their very vitals.

Subtle intriguing and treasonable individuals are intruding themselves into our land. With lies and deceit on their tongues, they seek to mislead the people and to sow the seeds of discontent and revolution.

Those whose voices like that of the Hearst newspapers are heard throughout the land should cry out for law, for order, for peace, for the maintenance of the republic. If there are errors in our social structure that need correction our Constitution furnishes the plan therefor.

URGES ETERNAL VIGILANCE

By Senator Charles S. Thomas

To the American:

I am deeply grateful that Mr. Hearst will give his great influence and circulation to finding and suppressing the creative cause of the extreme radicalism, violence and lawlessness in our social system. All good men of every class will co-operate with him in this effort for good government.

It appears to be monstrous that a great war of altruism and ideals should be followed by an orgy of selfishness in seeking rights and privileges through violence of expression and action which can only be permanently secured by reasonable appeal and co-operation among all classes of our population.

What American of any class would contemplate with less than revulsion such conditions as prevail in Russia? There is no room for Bolshevism in this country. There is no need for it. The workman and the wage-earner, the employer and the capitalist, can solve all questions without appeal to violence. Let us have no thinking of Bolshevism in America. If we should have a beginning let us make a speedy end to it. Mr. Hearst has an opportunity to do a signal service to the country in his leadership in this matter.

NO ROOM FOR BOLSHEVISM

By Senator Lee S. Overman

To the American:

Bolshevism is a new name for an age-long tendency. Since the world began those who have not or who covet more have been prone to plunder and pillage those who have.

In modern times some of its agencies have been combinations of finance and industry controlling transportation, production, distribution and consumption, fixing prices, watering values, and effacing competition. Through their media the transfer of wealth from the many to the few has been made easy and more lucrative than force and brutality ever achieved, and the element of physical danger has been eliminated.

This may not be Bolshevism in all its essentials, but it is a close blood relation. The latter is more greedy and unappeasable, recognizes one class as entitled to the earth and the fruits thereof, proposes to take it and to massacre the rest of humankind, all in the name of fraternity and democracy.

The remedy? Crush all assaults upon the right to property honestly acquired whether from above or below, safeguard life, protect every right of the individual and dispense justice without favor. This is possible only if the great mass of the people, forgetting selfishness, eager for sacrifice and spurning the petty quarrels of partisan strife, shall reconsecrate themselves in the support of the institutions of a country wrested from autocratic power through a long travail of blood and tears. These can be retained only through the exercise of a vigilance that must be sleepless and eternal.

I am glad you are giving your great powers to harmonizing the forces of society.

BELIEVES IN PEOPLE'S SENSE

By Senator Hoke Smith

To the American:

I cannot become excited over the possible increase of Bolsheviks in our country. While, of course, there are some unreasonable and intemperate men among the laboring classes, the I. W. W.s were never able to make any considerable inroad into American labor.

The great bulk of our working men engaged upon the railroads and with the industries come from the farms. They are steady, patriotic American citizens.

This class of men in many instances own their homes, are industrious and capable of earning fair supports. Again, half the labor in the United States is tilling the soil. The small farmer, owning his home, wishes to keep it. He does not desire to take by violence what belongs to others, and he will not permit others by violence to take what is his.

Our citizens called the laboring masses should receive fair and considerate treatment in all lines of employment. They have too much sense to be deluded by the belief that their prosperity will be increased by the destruction of property or by the suspension of industry. They have too much patriotism to join with nihilists.
